70th Year—120

Western Big Three Chiefs To Hold Parley On Peace

Senate Sharply Divided On Air Force Slashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration's explanation of its decision to cut the Air Force goal from 143 to 120 wings and slash its funds $5 billion has left a sharp division in Senate ranks.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), chairman of an appropriations subcommittee considering the new defense budget, said he believes Secretary of Defense Wilson "has made a good case for the new program."

"After all, the 143-wing goal of the Truman administration was just a paper target that could not be hit," Ferguson said. "Secretary Wilson assures us he has more money now than will be spent in the next fiscal year."

Sen. Hill D-Ala), also a member of the committee, disagreed sharply. He said:

"Mr. Wilson certainly has not convinced me, nor apparently most other members of the committee. He will have to justify the five billion dollar cut in the Air Forces before I'll ever vote for it."

Wilson has spent a good portion of the last two days before the Senate group, under questioning about the administration plan.

It proposes cutting the Air Force goal for mid-1955 from 143 wings to 120, each containing from 30 to 75 planes.

The revised Pentagon budget also calls for about $5 billion less in new funds for the Air Force in the fiscal year starting July 1. President Eisenhower, in his radio address Tuesday night, said 60 cents of every defense dollar will still be going into Navy and Air Force air power.

Wilson told the senators Wednesday that the 143-wing goal of the Truman administration had been slipping further from realization for more than three years and he added:

Ferguson said discussion about "a certain number of wings or so many unspent billions is only confusing."

"Under the revised 120-wing interim goal of the Eienhower administration this nation should have a lot more modern combat planes and much more striking power than the unreached 143-wing paper target," he said.

Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes stressed that even with the reduced appropriations request the Air Force will have $40 billion to spend after July 1, counting unspent funds voted by previous Congresses.

They said only about $15 billion would be spent during the next fiscal year.

Even if Congress restored the $5 billion cut from the old Truman budget, Wilson said, "we could not spend any part of it in '54 to strengthen the nation's air position."

With Oatis Freed, Czechs Ask U.S. To Keep Its 'Deal'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Czechoslovakia, in freeing Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis, acted six weeks after President Eisenhower offered to consider easing trade and travel restrictions against the Czechs.

The White House Thursday night released copies of messages exchanged between Eisenhower and new Czech President Antonin Zapotocky.

Eisenhower's message, dated March 30, told Zapotocky that if he would release Oatis the U. S. would be willing to negotiate lifting of sanctions imposed against Czechoslovakia when the newsman was jailed 25 months ago.

Zapotocky's reply, dated May 15, informed Eisenhower that Oatis was being pardoned on that day and would not have to complete the rest of his 10 year sentence on conviction of "spying."

U. S. Ambassador George Wadsworth and Czech Prime Minister Siroky handled the exchange between the two chief executives.

* * *

THE CZECH government through its controlled radio today called for the U. S. to terminate its economic restrictions against the country now that Oatis is free.

Radio Prague, heard in Vienna, broadcast the text of the notes to Czech listeners and quoted an editorial from the Czech Communist party organ, Rude Pravo, calling on Eisenhower to lift the sanctions.

The restrictions were these:

1. A barrier to Czech exports to the U. S., which had been running up to $20 million a year.

2. A ban on oil exports from the U. S. to Czechoslovakia.

3. A policy against travel to Czechoslovakia by any American not on essential business.

4. A ban against flights of Czech commercial planes over the U. S. zone of Germany.

In his public announcement of Oatis' freeing May 15, Zapotocky had said he acted on a direct appeal for mercy from Mrs. Oatis.

At that time the U. S. State Department said "there wasn't any deal" between the U. S. and Czechoslovakia to free the newsman.

Thursday night, Oatis issued a statement in New York in which he denied ever spying for the American Embassy while a newsman in Czechoslovakia.

He said "the cause of my trouble" was that he got news tips from sources other than official Czech news outlets, then checked them with the U. S. Embassy in an effort to gain more information.

Such practice is routine in Western countries, he said, but under Czech law "can be construed to be espionage."

Editors Getting Short Handshake

WASHINGTON (AP)—The official Washington handshake for large groups has been clocked by the White House at 4.3 seconds.

President Eisenhower's calling list today scheduled a hand-shaking with a group of business paper editors beginning at 11:45 a. m. The list called for Eisenhower to leave the White House at 11:55 a. m., for a luncheon. That allows 10 minutes for the handshaking. There are 140 editors in the group. That means about 4.3 seconds apiece.

Leading Jet Aces Getting New Medals

SEOUL (AP)—The world's leading jet aces, two Americans who destroyed 30 Red Migs over Korea, started toward home today.

They are stopping over in Tokyo briefly to receive more medals.

Then they'll go on to the United States, where Apple Valley, Calif., is planning a welcome for McConnell and Miami, Fla., is planning a celebration for Fernandez.

Both were retired from combat against their wishes.

"We prefer not to wear them out completely on this show," said Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, U. S. Fifth Air Force commander.

Meanwhile, counterattacking South Korean infantrymen threw 150 to 200 Chinese Reds off an eastern front ridge after 12 hours of close-quarter seesaw fighting.

Stubborn Rok soldiers clung to the eastern end. The Reds threw back two South Korean counterattacks, but Rok reinforcements were thrown into the battle before dawn and after six hours of fierce fighting the Reds called it quits.

Solons Shun Chiropractor Test Board

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House of Representatives Wednesday killed a proposal for a separate board to license chiropractors. The bill lost last Thursday, but a motion was made to reconsider the defeat.

But Wednesday's rejection of the motion to reconsider killed the proposal. Licensing of chiropractors will continue to be handled by the state medical board.

House refusal to accept Senate amendments in a bill proposing higher active-duty pay for enlisted men of the state militia forced the bill into a joint conference committee. The House approved a pay scale of $3 a day plus subsistence allowances. The Senate voted Tuesday to boost the pay scale to $8 a day on grounds militiamen lose their pay from their regular jobs.

The House passed and sent back to the Senate for consideration of minor amendments the bill merging three legislative bureaus. Senate approval of amendments will complete enactment of the measure to combine the Legislative Research Commission, the Code Revision Commission and the Ohio Program Commission.

The House also passed a Senate-approved bill to put common pleas and probate judges on the same salary basis. It also requires attorneys to wait six years after passing the bar examination before they can become judges.

The Senate passed and sent to the House without a dissenting vote a bill to permit up to 90-day jail sentences for first offenses of excessive cruelty to animals.

Auto Workers Facing Layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs engulfed or threatened 150,000 or more auto workers today as half a dozen major manufacturers reported their flow of parts choked off by strikes.

Ford, Chrysler, Studebaker, Willys, Nash and International Harvester all figured in the mushrooming production cuts.

They attrbuted their moves to three supplier strikes: at Ford's Canton, O., forge plant; at Borg-Warner's Warner Gear Division plant in Muncie, Ind., and at the Budd Company car body stamping plant here.

CLEVELAND (AP)—A new whooping cough vaccine, developed at Western Reserve University at a cost of around $500,000, will be tested on 7,000 English children this fall.

New Tax Rap Faces Broker

CLEVELAND (AP) — While lawyers of a former Lorain food broker prepared today to appeal his conviction for income tax evasion in 1945, federal attorneys considered new action against him on a $500,000 claim for income taxes in 1944 and 1946.

A federal jury took only 2½ hours to convict S. Jacob Sens, 47, now of New York City, of evading $68,000 in 1945 income taxes. The verdict Wednesday afternoon ended a trial begun May 11. Judge Charles J. McNamee sentenced Sens to two years in jail and fined him $3,000. Pending appeal, Sens was released on $10,000 bail.

Taft-Hartley Law Changes Coming

Virtual Closed Shop For Building Trade Unions Seen In New Setup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican members of the Senate Labor Committee were said today to have agreed on Taft-Hartley law amendments which would all but grant the closed shop to the building trades unions.

The amendments, now being put into a formal committee draft for public distribution next week, were described by senators who declined to be quoted by name.

The changes in the law, some of them promised by President Eisenhower in campaign speeches last fall, were agreed to by Republican members of the committee.

Committee Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) is expected to announce them next Monday. The changes can be expected before the full committee agrees on a comprehensive bill to amend the law.

The changes include:

1. Unions whose members customarily work in "casual employment," such as construction work, would be allowed to write work contracts with an employer before work actually starts.

* * *

AND WORKERS on the project would have to join the union seven days after work started. For all other employment, the present union shop provision would remain—that is, a worker cannot be compelled to join the union until 30 days after he takes his job. The full closed shop, now banned, compels workers to join the union before they go on the job.

2. Most public utilities and hundreds of small businesses would be exempt from all Taft-Hartley coverage. This would be done by changing the present law's definition of businesses covered by the federal law. No business would be specifically named.

The present definition would be changed so that, in the case of utilities, any concern engaged in the selling of gas, heat, light and water would be exempt so long as 75 per cent of its business was done within a single state.

3. Building service employes would be exempt. These include janitors and elevator operators.

4. Two members would be added to the five-man National Labor Relations Board. This would give President Eisenhower a chance to appoint four new members within the next few months. Board Chairman Paul M. Herzog has resigned effective June 30 and board member John M. Houston's term expires this summer.

5. Workers out on a legal strike would be permitted to vote in NLRB election cases, even if replaced by other workers. Eisenhower has said the present law might be used to "bust unions" and his remark was widely interpreted as a reference to the present ban on voting by legal strikers.

The present law's 80-day no-strike provision for use in national emergency disputes would be retained.

Ohio Postoffices Slated For Probe

Rep. Bender (R-Ohio), chairman of a House government operations subcommittee hunting ways to eliminate reported inefficiency in federal agencies, said his investigators will explore both the Columbus and Mansfield situations. He said the subcommittee is acting on complaints, but declined to give any details on either case.

Soviet Bomber Total Revealed

900-1,000 Long-Range Ships Believed Ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia now has between 900 and 1,000 planes in operating units of its long-range bombing force, according to a new estimate of Soviet war power.

These are described as TU4 four-engined bombers, an improved version of the U. S. Air Force's B29. They represent only those aircraft in organized, ready to-operate squadrons.

The TU4s are considered capable of reaching virtually any large industrial city in the U. S. with atomic bombs.

The calculations of Soviet war making capabilities place the number of Red interceptor planes in operationally ready units at several thousand. Actually, these figures are fairly definite, but the exact numbers used in official estimates may not be disclosed.

* * *

IN THE PAST, there have been unofficial estimates that the total number of aircraft in the Red air force, of all types and ages, is about 40,000.

Secretary of Defense Wilson told a news conference last week the U. S. Air Force now has in excess of 20,000 planes, the Navy and Marine Corps about 9,900.

Wednesday, during an appearance before a Senate committee, Deputy Secretary of Defense Roger M. Kyes was asked about comparative air strength. A committee member commented that everyone knows Russia has more planes than the U. S. Kyes said:

"I don't subscribe to that."

Wilson, in a committee appearance Tuesday, said it was difficult to determine the exact size of the Soviet air arm. The secretary said he thinks the U. S. has more long-range bombers than Russia.

Rep. Brown Back From Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Brown (R-Ohio) returned to the House Wednesday for the first time since he entered the Bethesda Naval Hospital about a month ago.

Brown, still weak and leaning on a cane, took part in consideration of the Agriculture Department appropriations bill. Brown's gall bladder was removed in the hospital.

House GOP Chief Sees Hope Of Extending Profits Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana said today he was "very optimistic" about chances for House approval of President Eisenhower's request to extend the excess profits tax on business.

But Republican opponents of the measure disclosed a series of strategy moves aimed at defeating or amending the proposal.

These were developments after a full day of backstage maneuvering yesterday on an issue that has developed into one of the sternest tests so far of Eisenhower's leadership with Congress.

At a conference with Halleck and House Speaker Joseph Martin (R-Mass), Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee agreed to hold hearings June 1-10 on Eisenhower's request.

This request, sent formally to Congress Wednesday after being outlined in the President's radio talk Tuesday night, exhorts Congress to cut no taxes this year.

* * *

EISENHOWER said he wants lower taxes as much as anybody but he said a reduction now would be inflationary.

He proposed this six-point tax program: extend the excess profits tax six months past its June 30 expiration date; don't cut corporation income taxes 5 per cent, as scheduled on April 1; postpone the one-half per cent increase scheduled Jan. 1 in social security taxes; don't cut excise taxes on April 1, as scheduled; don't cut income taxes for individuals until Jan. 1, then allow a 10 per cent cut already scheduled; go easy on all tax matters until Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey details the administration's program "by the end of the year."

The House Ways and Means Committee's decision to hold hearings on Eisenhower's request was a victory for the administration.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) has been adamant in insisting on tax cuts, and some Republicans had doubted whether Eisenhower's plan would ever be brought before the committee.

Further, the administration made inroads on what previously had been a solid lineup of all 15 committee Republicans against any extension of the excess profits tax, now bringing an estimated $2½ billion a year.

Several who attended the conference said it was clear some Republican committee members have switched over and will support the President.

Spelling Bee Underway To Pick Champion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 26th national spelling bee got underway here today with all but two of the 53 contestants surviving the first round, but more, including the Ohio entrant, falling in the second round.

Two girls, Alta Jackson, 14, of Quail, Tex., and Patricia M. Herbert, 13, of Manchester, N. H., were the first to falter.

Alta spelled "community" with only one 'm' and Patricia similarly dropped an "m" out of "immediate."

Four contestants dropped out in the second round as the words became increasingly hard.

Bermuda Is Expected To Be Scene Of Ike, Churchill, Mayer Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain and Premier Mayer of France will meet soon, probably in Bermuda, in an effort to advance the cause of world peace.

Announcing this today, the White House said the meeting of the Big Three leaders probably will be held the latter part of June.

The French foreign office said the meeting will start June 17 in Bermuda. In London, Churchill gave no specific date.

Just after the announcement was made, the French National Assembly denied Premier Mayer a vote of confidence and his Cabinet—the 18th since liberation—collapsed. It was not immediately known how this would affect the three-power talks.

In Congress, initial general reaction was to approve the idea of trying to improve understanding among the Western powers. Some expressed hope the Eisenhower-Churchill - Mayer meeting might lead to a session with the Russians.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said the Big Three meeting should "very much clear the air" of long distance arguments between the Senate and the British House of Commons.

* * *

SEN. GILLETTE (D-Iowa) commented that the meeting "could scarcely fail to be of value," but said it would "perhaps be more encouraging if the meeting were to include all permanent members of the United Nations Security Council" including Russia.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) called the idea a "very good one" and added: "I hope that in the meantime (between now and the meeting) Great Britain and France can try to understand our opposition to forc-

Soil-Building Proposal Put Off By Polk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Polk (D-Ohio) changed his mind Wednesday and decided not to offer a proposal to increase soil conservation payments to $25 million next year.

He did so when soil conservation proponents in the House barely saved a $195 million item proposed by the House Appropriations Committee for that purpose.

Polk indicated he felt his proposal would have slight chance in view of the small margin by which the House prevented a cutback in this fund to $140 million.

The soil conservation item is contained in a bill to provide funds for the Agriculture Department during the year that starts July 1.

Democrats for: Feighan and Kirwan.

Democrats against: Crosser, Hays, Polk and Secrest.

Du Pont Plant-Building Project Rolling Along On Schedule

(EDITOR'S NOTE: To tell of progress being made here in construction of the Du Pont Co. plant, and to explain some of the features that may escape the casual viewer, The Herald is presenting a two-part story on status of the project at this time. The second and final part follows.)

By ED McCANN
Herald Staff Writer

Along with the dividends in safety precautions and the efficiency that comes from high employe morale, Du Pont's big plant project at Circleville demonstrates the wonders possible through modern industrial know-how.

Field Project Manager James E. McCook chuckles at the question:

"How do you keep track of all this stuff, and how do you know exactly what you're going to need and where you're going to need it?"

He explains the giant jig-saw just has to fit together south of the city because it was all pictured, measured and cut "on paper" by the company's planners long ago.

"Ninety-nine and nine-tenths" of what you see at the plant site today was all marked off and calculated on paper before Du Pont even broke the news for Circleville. And so it will be for the rest of the way.

Pausing beside a clearing that looked no different than others all around it, McCook grinned:

"This is where we'll put the office for Mr. Ridlon (Emory F. Ridlon, named manager for the Circleville plant). You can tell him you saw his office when it was really air-cooled."

* * *

WHEN AMERICA'S big industrial firms vision their giant construction jobs, they do it much as a general staff plans a far-flung military campaign. Hundreds of seemingly-disconnected details turn out to have an important relationship in the final picture. Scores of the project's major phases have to be synchronized. Dozens of departments, both here and in other Du Pont offices, have to keep the same target dates.

It's all part of the know-how—the vital difference between a $10 million plant taking shape on schedule and a tremendous bedlam of tangled effort.

Big as the Circleville plant will be, it won't need all the property available for it—the Miriam Adkins tract and the Walt Goodman farm. The plant will occupy only a major part of the total 437 acres. The remainder will be turned over to Du Pont's real estate department for leasing.

Know-how also looks to the future.

Du Pont's first parking lot at the plant site was a small one, alongside a farm house used as the first field office. Now the outlines of big parking areas are prominent on the face of the project, and McCook figures there eventually will be parking room for about 500 cars.

At the height of its construction period, the plant will need that much.

* * *

THREE LARGE metal - and-cement structures are already outstanding to the distant viewer—a temporary administration building, a big receiving-and - storage warehouse and a shops building, The various craft units will have their shops in the latter, all located for maximum coordination when the building program goes into full gear.

Preparations are already under way to set the structural steel. By now, probably a half-dozen cars have been unloaded and, altogether, the plant will consume about 900 tons of structural steel supplies.

McCook explained there is no way at this time to pinpoint a

County Begins Official Study Of Bypass Row

On the surface, at least, the Route 23 bypass problem has moved from city to Pickaway County responsibility without sign of a change in strategy.

An ordinance passed by City Council, and designed to clear the way for state surveys along the bypass route, became effective Thursday after the 30-day waiting period.

Foes of the proposed highway change have challenged validity of the measure.

County Prosecutor William Ammer has asked for rulings on various phases of the dispute from the Ohio attorney general's office. When these are received, he suggests a public hearing be held on the controversy.

* * *

AMMER WAS out of the city Thursday, attending an Ohio prosecutors' association meeting in Cincinnati.

With expiration of the 30-day period after Council passed the disputed measure, the door also closed on any opportunity to seek a referendum against the measure. George Crites, spokesmen for bypass opponents, had indicated he might take such action but more recently said this idea had been discarded.

Cub Pack 205 Wins 2nd Place

Cub Scout Pack 205 of Presbyterian church won second place last weekend in the district Scout-O-Rama for its exhibit booth on Indian craft.

The local pack was one of seven units competing in the Indian Craft department of the huge Scout program.

MARKETS

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat showed a little flash of strength while other cereals generally held steady on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat responded mainly to buying by local traders who felt that, with the May contracts out of the way, the market would be less subjected to discouraged liquidation.

Dealings were rather slow in all pits.

Wheat near noon was 3/8-5/8 higher July $2.12 3/4, corn 1/8-3/8 higher, July $1.59 3/4, oats unchanged to 1/8 lower, July 73 1/8, soybeans 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, July $2.94 1/8, and lard 3 to 8 cents a hundred pounds higher, July $10.90.

Some officials in Great Britain and France have indicated an unwillingness to hold up a possible Korean truce because of disagreement on the POW question between the United Nations Command and the Reds.

The White House issued this statement by Eisenhower:

"The governments of the United States, Great Britain and France have been in consultation with the view of holding an informal high-level meeting.

"We have agreed that such a meeting is desirable at a date convenient to all of us.

"A primary purpose will be further to develop common viewpoints with these friends on the many problems that must be solved cooperatively so that the cause of world peace may be advanced."

* * *

WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said plans for the meeting were being announced simultaneously in Washington, London and Paris.

Hagerty said Eisenhower's reference to a high-level meeting meant a conference of the President, Churchill and Mayer.

Hagerty added there had been no definite decision as to where the session would be held, but that Churchill had suggested Bermuda. Hagerty said:

"The President of the United States has no objection to that."

He added that he understood Mayer also has no objections to Bermuda as a meeting place.

The fact it probably will be three weeks to a month before the Western Big Three meet gives time for a program of discussions to be worked out and preliminary exchanges of views among diplomats to pave the way for the top level conversations.

Programs in such a preliminary period frequently change radically before a session actually opens, but the main issues which concern the Big Three are clearly marked out in the state of world affairs today. They include these problems:

* * *

1. DIFFERENCES between the United States and France on the one hand and Britain on the other over relations with Red China. Essentially this is at the moment the Korean question but if a truce should be reached in the next two or three weeks it would still be an issue of major importance.

Britain recognizes Red China. The United States and France are carrying the burdens of the wars in Korea and Indochina and have been much more hostile to the Chinese Red regime.

Britain would like to see the Peiping government displace the Formosa Nationalists in the United Nations, but there is bitter opposition to this in the United States.

2. The state of European defenses has been a subject of almost constant work and worry by the Eisenhower administration since it came into office. The primary aim of present operations is to get France to ratify the European Defense Community so German forces may be brought into a European army—forces without which such an army will never be very substantial. A statement from a Big Three meeting might help Mayer get action at home.

* * *

3. RELATIONS with Russia raise another class of questions of primary importance. Churchill, with some show of interest from Paris, has demonstrated far more interest in a meeting with Malenkov than Eisenhower thus far has.

Eisenhower has called for evidence of possible accomplishment first, but Churchill has indicated willingness to meet Malenkov without any strings attached.

Educators Says Schools Not 'Godless' If They Don't Teach Definite Creed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A prominent educator, smarting from religious criticism, told some 2,500 delegates at the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers here Wednesday night that public schools are not "godless" because they refuse to teach a definite religious creed.

William G. Carr, executive secretary of the National Education Association, from Washington, D. C., said those who want public schools to teach religion "assume that their own private system of religious belief is the one essential prerequisite to moral and ethical behavior."

Carr spoke at the closed session of a three-day convention, which drew delegates from all 48 states, Hawaii and the District of Columbia. He added:

"The current attacks on education, whether well founded or merely malicious, supply a further reason for both parents and teachers to clarify once more the distinction between teaching a religious creed and teaching the moral and spiritual values which are basic to all creeds."

Carr said the nation's public schools, in their legal framework, must advocate no religious creed.

He said, however, "the public school is also obligated to teach about religion as a valued part of our American heritage. It should make clear the important part which religious faiths have played in giving direction and vitality to our American way of life."

Carr warned that while instructors should not teach any particular creed, they must not teach against any creed "or against religion in general."

The educator said the impact of war, the growing amount of leisure time, the changing patterns of home life, and the incidence of juvenile delinquency all cry of the need for improvement in moral and spiritual teaching in our schools.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

MASTER ADAMS

William Luther Adams Jr., two-hour-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William and Juanita Smith Adams of 210 Third St., died Wednesday afternoon in Berger hospital. The baby was born at 1:30 p. m.

Surviving the infant are two sisters, Sandra Sue and Ruth Elaine; a brother, Harold Landon Adams; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Smith, of Circleville; two great grandmothers, Mrs. Grover McCutcheon and Mrs. John Rose, both of Circleville; and a great grandfather, Robert Adams, of Kingston.

Funeral services wil be held at 10 a. m. Friday in Pilgrim Holiness church with the Rev. Alonzo Hill officiating. Burial will be in Meade cemetery.

Friends may call in the L. E. Hill Funeral Home, Kingston.

JAMES DANNER

James W. Danner, 64, of Laurelville Route 2, died at 6:45 p. m. Wednesday in the home of his sister, Mrs. James Shirkey, of near Ashville, where he was taken two weeks ago following a stroke.

Mr. Danner was born Aug. 12, 1888, near Adelphi, son of Charles and Rosa Childers Danner. While in Laurelville he made his home with a nephew, Chester Bode.

In addition to his father, who lives near Ashville, he is survived by three brothers, Arthur and Elmer of Adelphi and Beeman of Laurelville Route 2; five sisters, Mrs. Charles Garner of Circleville, Mrs. Shirkey of Ashville, Mrs. Harvey Bode of Spargursville, Mrs. Austin Collins of Ashville Route 2 and Mrs. Elva Beahmer of Adelphi.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in Pleasant Hill church, south of Adelphi. Burial will be in the churchyard cemetery.

Friends may call in Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

MRS. LEONARD MOUNT

Mrs. Ethel Mount, 63, of Mount Orab, died Tuesday in her home following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Mount is survived by her husband, Leonard; four sons, including Floyd Mount and William Mount; six daughters; one sister; and her father, John Redkey, of Mt. Orab.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in Mount Orab, followed by burial in Greenbush cemetery.

Jackson Teacher Leaves On Tour

Charles Will of Circleville, English teacher and librarian for Jackson Township School, was to have left New York City Wednesday for a tour of England and Europe.

Will has scheduled a one-month stay in England, where he expects to attend the coronation ceremony for Queen Elizabeth II on June 2, and then continue to tour Germany, France and Spain. He is expected to return in August.

First It's Stray Dog Problem, Now City Studies Loose Bees

Stray bees have been added to stray dogs in the list of top problems for C. O. Leist, city safety director.

City Council had hardly finished turning down his proposal against stray dogs when a resident of the northend asked that something be done to protect local citizens from stray bees.

Leist said a woman phoned to say her small boy had been stung by a bee. Unable to locate a doctor on Wednesday afternoon, according to Leist, she had to come to a downtown drug store to obtain the proper remedies.

Leist said he planned to check and see what state law provides on the keeping of bees within a city's limits.

* * *

"OF COURSE if this problem gets worse," he said, "we'll have to pass it along to Council."

In a surprise move at regular meeting last Tuesday night, Council voted down Leist's proposal to put a heavier penalty on the owners of dogs found loose in the city. Councilmen Boyd Horn and John Robinson voted against the measure.

Meanwhile, a story reported by Nolan Dunkle, City Hall janitor, indicated stray bees in large enough numbers may even discourage parking meter returns.

Duncan said he recently discovered bees had clustered over a spot where a jar of honey had been smashed in front of City Hall. The busy little stingers were hovering so close to a parking meter, Dunkle said, that a motorist refused to put in the usual coin for parking.

The janitor solved that particular problem by washing it away with a hose.

Builder Tells Of Housing Project Plan

Frank L. Gorsuch, Lancaster builder, announced Thursday he is ready to start construction of a low-cost housing project on Watt street near McCrea Ave.

He said the project, to be known as the Bloom Dale Addition, will have 62 houses. It is scheduled to be well under way in July.

Gorsuch said he decided to proceed with the job after a recent conference with city councilmen. He indicated he has assurance the city would cooperate in the way of sewer extensions. Individual councilmen also have said they had encouraged the project.

* * *

GORSUCH SAID most of the homes will be priced between $8,000 and $10,000. The price, in some cases, "may run a little higher," he said.

Gorsuch, who said he already controls the property, said two-bedroom houses will require $600 down payment, while those with three bedrooms will require $900 down.

Federal Housing Administration arrangements will make the low down payments possible, he explained.

4 City Youths Held Here After Assaulting Girls

Circleville authorities Thursday investigated two separate cases in which minor youths have assaulted or mistreated minor girls in the last two days.

Three youths, ages 14, 15 and 17, were arrested by city police Wednesday night for investigation of attempted rape of a 13-year-old city girl.

On Tuesday night, police arrested another 17-year-old lad after he allegedly beat a 13-year-old girl. The girl has been hospitalized as a result of the beating.

Authorities said the three youths arrested Wednesday night induced the young girl to ride in their auto, then drove to a side road east of town and attempted assault.

All four of the young men were being questioned Thursday by Probation Officer Karl Herrman. They are expected to be processed later before juvenile court.

Drunk Driver Bill Chances Rated Strong

Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative, gave renewed assurance Thursday that a bill to give drunk drivers a mandatory jail term is headed for passage and that it faces no organized opposition.

Attention was focused on the measure here when local law enforcement officers expressed belief the state needs far more rigid regulations to reduce the highway accident toll.

It was also speculated the new attempt to tighten the law against drunk drivers was being fought behind the scenes in the 100th General Assembly.

Wallace pointed out the bill calling for jailing of drunk motorists has been passed by the senate and is now in the house judiciary committee. He added:

"The committee has been overloaded with municipal court and utility legislation. I don't feel that the bill is being delayed by any individual or forces with obstructing motives.

* * *

"THERE HAS BEEN some opposition to the bill on the grounds that arresting officers would be tempted to prefer charges other than 'drunk driving.'

"I believe, however, that this measure will eventually reach the floor of the house and become enacted into law. If it serves no other purpose, it would tend to curb drinking motorists from getting behind the wheel, and I believe it would have a drastic effect in curtailing accidents."

He's No Gentleman; He's A Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gore (D-Tenn) apologized in the Senate yesterday for calling Sen. Bush (R-Conn) a gentleman. Bush accepted, with a forgiving smile.

The two had been debating interest rates on government bonds. Gore suddenly realized he had repeatedly spoken of Bush as "the gentleman from Connecticut."

That's the way House members address each other. In the Senate, decorum calls for members to address each other as "the distinguished senator."

New Pipeline Job Planned By Ohio Fuel

Local officials of Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Thursday said construction work will begin next week on a $2,307,290 pipeline project. The new facilities will boost the firm's capacity from Texas gas transmission lines.

James Cole, manager for Ohio Fuel Gas Co. here, said the project is covered by two separate budgets and is scheduled for completion in August.

One section of the job calls for 26 miles of 20-inch line from Ohio Fuel's Crawford Station near Lancaster directly west toward Mt. Sterling. It will cost $1,276,290. Ditching on this phase of the project will begin Monday.

Second phase of the project will be 22 miles of 20-inch line between Centerville Measuring Station, Montgomery County, and Howell Junction, Green County. It will cost $1,031,000. Ditching is scheduled for early in July.

* * *

DURING SUMMER months, the new line provide greater capacity for additional gas from the Southwest, much of which will be stored underground for cold weather use throughout Ohio Fuel's system.

In the Winter, western Ohio markets will benefit by increased deliveries made possible through the project.

Pete, Hiccuping Hereford, Slated For Operation

Ohio State University veterinarians hope to cut out of Pete the burps that have plagued him since March 29.

Pete is owned by Jerry Shanks of Martinsville, Clinton County.

"The operation will last perhaps an hour and a half," said Dr. John Helwig, chairman of preventive medicine who will do the surgery. "A metal detector applied to Pete shows he may have swallowed some foreign object which is affecting his stomach wall. This may have overstimulated his phrenic nerve."

Pete had some cause to be happy, however, even before surgery. Veterinarians succeeded in cutting down the number of hiccups from 10 to 3 a minute.

Bond Sales Here Almost Tripled During April

Ohio purchases of Series E and H Savings Bonds in April maintained the trend of higher month-by-month sales, compared to the same periods last year, and totaled up to a dollar gain of $3,469,881 over April, 1952.

Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of the Pickaway County savings bond committee, said sales of E and H Bonds here were $35,100 for the month and compare to $14,456.00 put into E Bonds a year ago.

All but 13 of Ohio's counties showed increases for the first month of the second quarter of 1953, Radcliff said. Cuyahoga, Montgomery, and Lucas reported the largest dollar gains for the big-city counties.

Radcliff also said national sales of E and H Bonds for the first four months of 1953 were 29 per cent greater than sales of E Bonds for a similar period last year, and the total cash value of E and H Bonds held by individuals hit an all-time peak of $35.8 billion in April.

About 75 per cent of all E Bonds which have matured since May 1, 1951, were being held at the end of last month.

Cpl. Ted Wolfe In 'Sea Jump'

Taking part in "Sea Jump," the largest Navy and Marine Corps training exercise ever staged on the West Coast, was Cpl. Theodore K. Wolfe of Circleville.

Wolfe, a tank mechanic, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Wolfe of Circleville, Route 1. He and his wife, the former Rose M. Morris of Chillicothe, live at 232½ South Freeman St., Oceanside, Calif.

Serving in the 3d Ordnance Battalion, a unit of the 3d Marine Division, the local Leatherneck joined 24,000 Marines in an amphibious assault on Aliso Beach near Ocean side, Calif., on D-day, May 5.

"Sea Jump," a graduation exercise for the Division, completed a rugged 14-month curriculum of beach, desert, snow and atomic training.

U.S. Business Against Excess Profits Tax

Arguments Outlined Concerning Levy Ike Proposes To Keep

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The excess profits tax—marched onto the congressional battlefield by President Eisenhower's radio talk—is firmly opposed by most businessmen.

They charge it penalizes the wrong fellow and hurts the general economy by encouraging waste and extravagance.

The arguments for and against the tax which you are certain to hear in the next few weeks run like this:

If the tax is continued, as the President recommended, for six more months beyond its scheduled death date of June 30, the U. S. Treasury stands to get better than one billion dollars more from business—and the treasury needs the money, which must come from somewhere.

Those favoring extending the tax will argue that it is laid on "big business," on "profiteering" and on those most able to pay because their earnings are "excessive." If they weren't making so much they wouldn't be subject to the tax, in the first place.

That is the idea on which the tax was fashioned.

This is how it works: The regular corporation income tax of 52 per cent is levied on the earnings of all corporations. That is all the majority pay.

But some 50,000 firms come under the excess profits tax. They may pay as much as 68 per cent of all their earnings into the Treasury.

Those affected are companies whose present earnings exceed 85 per cent of their average earnings in their three best years during the four year period of 1946-1949, inclusive.

Opponents of EPT—which include most businessmen whether they pay the tax or not—contend that the tax doesn't hurt big business as much as it does the small, growing one.

The fact that a corporation is making more money now than it happened to be making in 1946-49 doesn't mean it is profiteering.

Some industries were going through their own private slumps during that period, and are doing well again now. EPT hits them hard.

Others were just starting out after the war, making no money at all, or very little. Now they are prospering, and EPT swats them hard.

Companies who were doing very well in 1946-1949 are likely not to be touched by EPT—unless they are trying to grow and do better. Then they are hit.

Opponents of EPT charge the tax puts a penalty on growth, on efficient management, on wise investment.

They also contend it encourages waste this way: If a company must pay into the U. S. Treasury 68 cents of every dollar it makes—leaving a "32-cent dollar" for itself—there's every incentive to be extravagant. After all, in one sense, "the government is paying most of the bills."

By spending extravagantly on such things as entertainment, and fancy offices, the company may reduce its gross profits and pay less excess profits tax. Some even slip below EPT's grasp this way.

Proponents of EPT, however, point out that this urge to spend and escape the tax has had some good effects for business. They list the encouragement it has given to spending on research and development of new products, on advertising, and on liberalization of pensions.

Opponents answer this is more than offset by the harm it does in encouraging waste and costly operational practices and in penalizing growing companies.

Businessmen argue waste and a roadblock on growth hurt the whole economy more than additional tax dollars help the U. S. Treasury.

Belly Dancer's Mate Trying Save Marriage

At the end of six months King wired Graham: "We're still drinking champagne together."

While King was preparing to leave for Cairo to try to talk Samia out of seeking a divorce, he received this telegram from Graham.

"I sincerely regret to learn of the unhappiness in your married life. May I remind you most seriously that true happiness for any individual or marriage is to be found only through faith in Jesus Christ. I shall be praying for you."

King replied:

"Appreciate so much your prayers for me in my current marital discord. Keep your fingers crossed. I'm Cairo-bound."

DREAM ASSIGNMENT

CHIEF WARRANT Officer Leslie Y. Harness has what many of his colleagues would say is the soldier's all-time dream assignment—only man in the WAC. He came by his good fortune honestly enough—not by any clerical error or other happenstance which in times past gave many a GI a false sense of anticipation only to be quickly rectified. Chief Warrant Officer Harkness is an old Army musician.

As such he is substituting for the regular distaff leader of the WAC band now on a nationwide tour.

The girls—and Mr. Harkness—have been putting in appearances at various functions here and there at widely scattered points in the land, all for the good purpose of pointing out that Uncle Sam has jobs for his nieces as well as his nephews.

Warrant Officer Harkness, a veteran of 32 years' service, shepherds his flock so expertly that if he isn't careful they'll start to refer to him as the Phil Spitalny of the military forces. One thing appears certain. The Chief is sure glad he took up music.

THE MIG OFFER

IF COMPETITION IS to spread among the states for the privilege of entertaining the first communist pilot to fly a MIG jet in to UN hands in Korea, sight should not be lost of the serious intent of the project.

When General Clark announced his $100,000 offer, the motive was to hasten the end of hostilities by adding to Allied knowledge of an effective red weapon and by creating confusion and suspicion among enemy fliers. If alluring supplementary bait held out by individual states has the effect of making the scheme more certain of success, so much the better.

But the last thing in Clark's mind when he launched the idea was that it be exploited as a stunt by forces far behind the battle lines and beyond his control.

There is no call to question the sincerity of officials in their wish to further the plan by listing the superior advantages of their states as a place for a communist fighter pilot to settle down. But realism urges that efforts be made to keep the plan from degenerating into a farce.

Russian press is demanding larger TV screens. The people can hardly be that anxious to see all of Malenkov at one time.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Since the Yugoslav Communist, Tito, broke with Stalin, some of the statesmen of the Western world, including not a few in our own State Department, have been seeking an imitation Tito in each of the Communist countries. Thus far, they have failed to find any. Tito is apparently a special case among Communists. Nationalistic Communists, such as Dimitrov in Bulgaria or Earl Browder in the United States, were eliminated for their divergencies.

Tito is as much a Marxist today as he was when, as a member of the Comintern, he was chosen to head Stalin's forces in Yugoslavia. He has never renounced Marxism. He has only established National Communism in his own country, rejecting a subordinate position to Stalin in the leadership of the world revolution. Why Titoism is superior to Stalinism is not understandable on any ideological basis; it is only understandable in the outright opportunism which has been characteristic of the British foreign policy from Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler at Munich to Churchill's appeasement of Mao Tza-tung in China or of Malenkov in his latest speech in Parliament.

Our State Department, under Dean Acheson, generally was a mirror of British policy. Therefore, while Acheson paid lip service to anti-Communism in China, he served the cause of British trade too ardently to hold an independent view for the United States. John Foster Dulles, who has tried to build an American foreign policy, has encountered so much opposition within our own government that his earlier pronouncements, as well as those of President Eisenhower, have melted away as though in thin air.

This country is now back to the opportunism of looking for Titos and bribing them to serve our temporary purposes. Yet, the Republicans always denounced the expedients of overly-clever men who lived by tricks rather than by principles of action. They are the authors of most of our present misfortunes.

One of the Titos that these statesmen, British and American, would manufacture is Mao Tze-tung, the current Kremlin satrap in China. Following the advice of Nehru of India is always dangerous because Nehru is a broker whose profits can only come from trouble among the Western countries. When he advises that the United States recognize Mao Tze-tung, he is tricking us into a dangerous situation. His motive is to achieve the leadership of Asia for India—a laudable motive for his country but not in our interest.

Senator William Knowland, who is undoubtedly the best-informed member of the Senate on Asiatic questions, recently said in a speech:

"While I recognize there is room for an honest difference of opinion, it is my own belief that the acceptance of the Communist proposal to have prisoners of war turned over to a commission representing India, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland is a great mistake, and one that may be hard to justify in the years to come.

"All five of these nations have recognized Communist China.

Nitroglycerin Ointment Tried In Cases of Raynaud's Disease

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NITROGLYCERIN, the powerful explosive liquid used to make dynamite, is also known to every doctor as an important drug. As a medicine it is called glyceryl trinitrate.

Of course, it is not used for any kind of blasting, but to relax and dilate the blood vessels, increasing the blood supply through them. This makes it valuable in the heart attacks called angina pectoris, and in certain blood vessel diseases, such as Raynaud's disease.

Blood Vessel Spasms

Raynaud's disease, named for the French doctor who described it, causes spasms of the blood vessels of the arm and hand. It is not too rare, occurring mostly in women, but sometimes in men.

Mental and physical strain such as may occur due to exposure to cold, or an attack of nervousness or fear help bring on attacks. Tobacco sometimes increases the tendency for attacks.

During a blood vessel spasm, the fingers become pale, cold, livid and numb. They continue this way for a few minutes to an hour, and then the spasm relaxes. The hand becomes intensely red, with a feeling of heat.

May Cause Skin Changes

Repeated attacks of Raynaud's disease injure the lining of the blood vessels. The passages through the vessels then become narrow, and blood clots are apt to form in them because of the slowing down of the circulation. This condition may lead to skin changes, in which the skin loses its normal healthy texture. Scars may form and the hand can become deformed.

Usually, this disease occurs in one hand, but eventually it will appear in both.

In correcting this condition, it is helpful if the person can clear up any emotional troubles he may be having. Warm clothes are sometimes of help, too.

Nerves Severed

In extremely stubborn cases, an operation known as a sympathectomy can be employed. This operation severs certain nerves in the back along the spinal column which control the circulation to the hand and arm. As a result, the circulation is increased.

Recently, a number of cases have been helped with nitroglycerin. This chemical is mixed with lanolin and in the dose prescribed by the doctor, is rubbed at frequent intervals into the skin of the hand or arm. The ointment, it has been found, increases the circulation and blood supply, and raises the temperature of the skin.

It is not likely that nitroglycerin will be effective as a permanent cure for this disease, but it has benefited patients temporarily, and may offer some relief.

Cruise with Death

By F. DRACO

Copyright, 1952, by Rinehart & Company, Inc. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

SYNOPSIS

Aboard the yacht "Spiritus" riding anchor off Nassau, Bahamas, Lord Robert Tintagel, his American wife Virginia, and their elderly aunt, Lady Lisa Tremaine, await the arrival of further guests. Darius Opdyke, a wealthy eccentric and owner of the luxury craft, had invited eight people to cruise with him along the South American coast. Remaining guests finally board ship. There's Gay Walton, movie actress and her very mature escort, Frederick Brown, a lawyer; Larry Redding, a broker, and his handsome wife, Carlotta; Dr. Ruben Randolph, psychiatrist. When the yacht is well underway, its passengers meet their captain, Ephriam Jonas, and their steward, Todd. Observing this odd pair, Virginia Tintagel somehow feels that the passengers are prisoners of the crew. Her premonition of evil is heightened when at dinner their host, Opdyke, announces that he means to live dangerously and gloatingly adds that he knows everything about each of his guests. Late that night there is wild commotion on deck, with the captain shouting: "The owner's gone overboard!"

CHAPTER SIX

THE LIGHTS went on in the owner's cabin behind us, and the captain cursed and jumped for the door, with the rest of the crowd close behind him. Robert was in there standing in the middle of the room, a picture of blue-eyed innocence, and holding a long white envelope by one corner.

"I thought we ought to start our search in here," he said in his blandest voice. "This was propped up against the mirror of the dressing table. It is addressed to Captain Jonas."

Jonas held out his hand. "Then I'll thank you to give it to me."

Robert ignored him, reading from the crabbed writing on the envelope. "'In the event of my death open and read this in the presence of all the passengers.'"

Frederick Brown cleared his throat, and spoke up in an authoritative manner. "Since this evidently concerns us all, I will take it for safe keeping until the captain is ready."

"It ought to go in the safe," Larry said uncertainly.

But the captain took the envelope from Robert—and a few minutes later we all knew that any amount of apprehension had been justified.

The envelope contained Darius Opdyke's will, all duly signed and witnessed by Tamas Todd and Margaret Todd Macbeth and naming his business partner as executor.

The body of the document stated:

"I believe that should I die upon this voyage I shall have met with foul play. I therefore direct that I shall be buried at sea at dawn of the day following that whereon I die, and that the cruise then be continued for seven days after my burial, unless during the interim the murderer is discovered or confesses. If on the seventh day the identity of my murderer is still unknown, the captain shall open the safe in my cabin, of which he alone has the combination, and shall take therefrom, in the presence of all the passengers, another letter, giving reasons why persons on board might wish to murder me.

"Upon the condition that the above be carried out in its entirety, I leave my yacht Spiritus to Captain Ephraim Jonas, master of the same, directing that all taxes be paid thereon out of my residuary estate, in addition to all running expenses for one year thereafter.

"The remainder of my estate, wherever situated, after my just debts have been paid, shall go to the discoverer of my murderer, whosoever he, she, or they, may be. . . ."

The silence which persisted after the reading was catastrophic until Dr. Randolph spoke.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed.

The sound of his voice seemed to release the feelings of the others, for everyone broke out at once, but Frederick Brown had the most booming voice, and he won.

"Plainly the instructions of a deranged mind. Of course we will disregard them."

The captain did not answer him for a good long minute. He had been so quiet all the first day that most of us had not paid any attention to him, but now it was as if we could see him growing before our eyes, until he filled the room. He folded the paper very deliberately, stuck it back into the envelope, put it in the inside breast pocket of his uniform, giving it a pat to make sure it was comfortable. A malicious grin split his face as a fissure splits a rock.

"I will carry them out," he said.

Larry muttered something incoherent. Brown turned red.

"We'll see about that," Jonas answered. "It's duly witnessed and written in longhand. I think it will stand."

But Brown was not a man who gave up easily, as we were beginning to find out.

"I don't want to be officious," he began. "There is a correct procedure to be followed in these cases. We must notify the authorities by radio, and then we must make for the nearest American port. Don't you agree, Mr. Redding?"

Larry ran his hand over his short hair. His face had a worried look which seemed unnatural to it. "Oh, I don't know. I just don't know. I just can't take it in."

Brown went on as though he had not expected to get anything from Larry which could possibly matter.

"I'll come along with you to the radio shack, captain. The district attorney in Key West is a friend of mine. I may be of some help."

Jonas shook his head. His face was sober now, but I got the impression that he was laughing at us.

"Can't be done, mister."

"I'd like to know why not."

"Radio's out of whack. Has been since this afternoon."

Larry had been looking more and more as if he couldn't believe his ears. Now his broad pink face registered horror. He found his tongue at last.

"Now see here, captain. This just won't do. You can't keep us sailing around out here. A terrible thing has happened and we've got to get ashore. My uncle—"

Jonas said "He wasn't your uncle, Mr. Redding. I've no doubt you'd like to see me go against this will and lose my chances, but I've not a mind to do it. The goose that laid your golden eggs is dead. And I'm here to see the will gets carried out." He tapped the pocket meaningly."

"A fight won't help any, Larry. Don't you see that we are all his prisoners?"

Gay Walton gave a shriek, and I could see she was close to hysteria. Lisa looked over her head at Robert, and shrugged, as if this new phase of American mores was too much for her. In her experience the best way to deal with unpleasant occurrences was to behave as if they had not occurred.

"I think I shall go to bed," she said. She might have been ignoring a waiter who had spilled the soup.

"No, ma'am," said the captain firmly. He went on in his raven's croak as if he were addressing the crew. "It's plain we had ought to search the ship, and check up on the movements of everybody. To make sure there's no hanky-panky, I'll take the men along with me, and the women can wait for us all together in the salon. Mrs. Macbeth can bring you anything you want."

Lisa looked at him in astonishment, then looked at Robert, and Robert gave her a faint nod as though signaling that she had better comply. She subsided then.

A diversion was created by the arrival of the search boat alongside the yacht, and the captain went out to see it hoisted and stowed. The rest of us used the opportunity to get out of the owner's cabin and across the dark passage to the large salon, which was the only other room on the promenade deck. We were a silent, serious, and worried group, but I think we all breathed a little more freely when we got out. There had been something ghastly about Mr. Opdyke's cabin, with his personal articles scattered about.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, May 21 — Reversing Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge's economy decrees and Secretary Douglas McKay's power policies, President Eisenhower has quietly approved continued construction of the great, multiple-purpose Oahe dam in South Dakota at an eventual cost of $326,770,000 to the taxpayers. Personal and political considerations alone motivate the White House decision.

The Truman request of $14.8 million for 1954 construction was eliminated by Dodge from the War Department's Civil Functions Appropriations Bill on April 20. Because of doubt as to Oahe's economic, engineering and hydroelectric feasibility, Dodge ruled for indefinite deferment and possible permanent elimination pending further review of the natural resources problem in the vast Missouri Basin.

Many Army authorities and local interests support this viewpoint. The cost of power produced here, in their opinion, will be so excessively high that neither rural cooperatives nor industry would be able to buy it at a sufficiently favorable rate. But the politicians seeking Federal funds for this section insist on going ahead with Oahe.

* * *

UNNECESSARY — On May 5, only a few days after the Governors spent two days with Eisenhower in conference at the White House, the President sent to Congress a special request for continuation of the project, with a 1954 appropriation of $8.2 million.

Unless blocked by Congress, Ike's decision will result in heavy expenditures for a dam which his aides regard as unnecessary. It will also inspire political interests in every part of the country to begin logrolling on Capitol Hill for other projects previously rejected by Dodge and McKay at an advertised saving of many millions of dollars.

Apparently, the Governors from this politically important area took advantage of their visit to the White House to resell Ike on Oahe. He is also concerned over opposition charges that he plans to "give away" valuable natural resources, especially power sites, to private interests.

* * *

PLAN EXPANDED—The Oahe undertaking provides a perfect example of the difficulty of eliminating a paternalistic form of government and reducing costs after 20 years of giving the politicians what they want. It also exemplifies the spending procedure known at Washington and every state capital as "getting the camel's nose under the tent." Soon, no tent is left.

Oahe was authorized about five years ago because of its prospective contribution to flood control, irrigation, navigation and production of power. It was planned to be only a $72.8 million proposition. Now, through the usual changes and expansions, it has developed into a $326.7 million project, and even that may be an underestimate. Through 1949-1953 only $16.355,000 has been spent.

* * *

DECISION—The fact that it is only 5 per cent completed is another factor behind Budget Director Dodge's adverse decision. He was following instructions of the House Appropriations Committee that there should be no "new starts" in the reclamation field, and that projects less than 20 per cent finished should be deferred or abandoned.

Now, it is pointed out that the Eisenhower decision will necessitate fairly heavy expenditures and amount to a pledge that Oahe should be completed.

* * *

FEASIBILITY —Ironically, Oahe was dealt several other blows even before Director Dodge ruled against it. Appearing before the Missouri Basin Survey Commission, a Truman agency, V. T. Hanlon, a rural cooperative manager from Madison, Wis., questioned the project's economic feasibility. On the basis of increasing costs, he doubted that Truman-Chapman - Straus estimates of low electricity rates to farmers and local industry could be fulfilled.

The Federal Reserve Bank for this region holds that, although South Dakota has the world's potential of manganese, it cannot be processed at a low enough cost to compete with present sources. And the possible development of Missouri Basin minerals was the principal basis for federal exploitation of this whole area, which extends from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi River.

Stanton Delaplane is skeptical about those expensive dog whistles that are supposedly pitched so high only dogs can hear them. "How," demands "Stan," "can the manufacturers prove their claim? Can they get a single signed statement from a satisfied canine? Of course not. It's like the light inside a refrigerator that's supposed to go out when you close the door. People who sell them say so. But how do you know for sure?" "Stan" concludes that what we REALLY need is not a whistle, but television commercials that only dogs can hear. Amen!

Professional Women's Club Stages Banquet For Seniors

Mrs. H. Boecher Addresses Girls

A spinning wheel, a musical program of sprightly old tunes and treasured gowns from other eras provided sesquicentennial atmosphere for the banquet given for girls of Circleville High school graduating class by the Business and Professional Women's Club. The banquet was held in the Parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal church Wednesday evening.

Girl graduates were greeted by a reception committee wearing dresses representative of fashions from colonial times to the present. Mrs. J. C. Rader was gowned in a Martha Washington costume of lavendar organdy over an old fashioned print. She wore a powdered wig. Miss Rose Good was attired in black ruffled chiffon, a black lace shawl and a bonnet with pansies said to be 150 years old. Miss Clara Southward wore white embroidred voile fashionable at the turn of the century and Mrs. Anna Chandler's dress was a black lace with long torso and uneven hemline worn in the early twenties.

Miss Wilmina Phebus, retiring president, in welcoming the guests, reminded the audience that the banquet for girl graduates has Lutz, class valedictorian, respondbeen a tradition since 1923. Blanche ed in behalf of her class mates and following the response, Miss Phebus introduced the girls individually.

Mrs. Norman Ritter, program chairman, announced the musical program which consisted of duets by Mrs. Defenbaugh and Mrs. Larry Graham accompanied by Mrs. Liest. In the first group of duets, were: "The Waltz of the Flowers" by Tschaikowsky, "False Prophet" by Scott and "Skip-to-My-Lou" old American Folk Song. The second group of duets included: "Blossom Time", Lerman; "Ciribiri," Pestalozza-Wallis and "Grandfather's Clock" and Old American Folk Song.

All three musicians were attired in gay nineties costume, Mrs. Leist and Mrs. Graham in summer dresses of white embroiderd voile and Mrs. Defenbaugh in black chiffon with sequins and train—Mrs. Leist wore a sailor hat of straw—the other two old fashioned bonnets.

Mrs. Harold Boecher of Hallsville was the speaker. Herself a nurse, Mrs. Boecher began her address with a definition of nursing which she said was "proper care, following an illness or injury". Nursing has been practised since ancient times but modern standards began to be set only after 1850, mainly through the work of Florence Nightengale. She listed the general duties of a nurse and spoke of the different fields of nursing.

Mrs. Boecher advised her listeners to pick out an accredited school of nursing if they were planning on such a career. She told the girls many of her own experiences from the time she entered training at Henry Ford General Hospital in Detroit through her years as an army nurse.

Mrs. Boecher has done Public Health work, private duty, general duty and has served as Field Consultant for Crippled Children's Service. She was chosen for work as an anesthetist while in the army and quite recently she took extra training for psychiatric nursing. "There are many fields in nursing," she said, "and each holds a different interest." She ended by telling the graduates she hoped she had sold them on nursing and assured them that there were always adventures to be had in a nursing career.

Banquet tables also carried out the sesqui-centennial theme in their decorations. Iron silhouettes of an old fashioned woman at her spinning wheel and a coach drawn by four horses were placed at the ends and in the middle of the long tables. Between the silhouettes were narrow, containers filled with low arrangements of old-fashioned garden flowers from Circleville gardens. The flowers were roses, peonies, columbine, painted daisies, honeysuckle, corn flowers, iris and pansies. Each flower container was flanked by white candles.

In the seven windows were big bouquets of old-fashioned snow balls, high bush cranberry and iris.

On the stage was a grouping of furniture to provide sesqui-centennial atmosphere. A large spinning wheel, which belonged to Dr. Ed Lilly's grandmother and loaned by Mrs. Lilly centered the stage. Near it were placed an antique end table and ladder back chair over which a hand woven coverlet had been draped.

Programs were little old fashioned slates. Favors for the guests and girl graduates were miniature coal scuttles and iron kettles with Pennsylvania Dutch decoration. Club members received small wall plaques with silhouettes of old fashioned men and women on them. Place cards were white with silhouette of a horse and buggy.

Committees responsible for the banquet included: Dinner, Mrs. Clarence Hott and Elizabeth Davison; decorations, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Guy Campbell, Mrs. Clayton Chaflin, Mrs. Guy Petit, Mrs. Mary Luse and Miss Anne Gordon; program, Mrs. Ritter, Mrs. Clayton Vaughn and Miss Eleanor McCill; reception, Mrs. Rader, Miss Southward, Miss Good, Mrs. Chandler; invitation, Mrs. Ruth Neff, Mrs. Chandler, Miss Elma Rains, Mrs. Lucille Reid; music, Mrs. Defenbaugh, Miss Bess Gordon; transportation, Miss Clarissa Talbut and Miss Mary K. Wolf.

I LOST 40 POUNDS
AKRON LADY PRAISES RENNEL

"After trying so many ways to reduce, I was ready to quit in despair," writes Mrs. Eva. McClancy, 65 Cook St., Akron, Ohio. "However, I had received such a glowing recommendation about Rennel Concentrate from a friend of mine, that I decided to try it. Believe me I'm glad I did. I have lost 40 pounds, and the best part of it from my standpoint is that I didn't have to diet. I recommend RENNEL very highly."

Thousands have found this amazing simple home recipe the safe economical no diet way to reduce. Costs only $1.40. Ask your druggist for 4 ounces of liquid RENNEL CONCENTRATE. To this add either the juice of two lemons or unsweetened grapefruit juice as per directions. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. If you are not pleased with the results from the first bottle return it to the manufacturer for your money back. See your druggist today and regain normal weight with RENNEL.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

The nation's food stores picked all cuts of beef again this week as the best buys in meat. Lamb prices climbed nearly everywhere while pork continued to sell at high prices.

Sirloin steak was selling from four to 10 cents lower in some retail outlets. Ribs of beef were unchanged to a few cents lower. Chuck roast, round roast, ground beef and other cuts also were mentioned by food men as being good buys.

One chain was featuring an "economy dinner"—corned beef, potatoes and cabbage, all of which are on the bargain lists of most stores.

The average rise in the retail price of leg of lamb this week was about four cents a pound. Food men commented that both lamb and pork were holding steady at high prices after their recent jumps.

There were some specials on frying and roasting chickens. Wholesalers reported that poultry raisers were selling chickens at or below cost and that the processors were not getting "their proper spread." There was said to be a vast supply of chickens on the farm.

On the other hand, wholesalers reported a relative shortage of both shell and rozen eggs.

In retail stores, egg prices generally held the same as last week, but there were some instances where a penny or two was added to the cost of a dozen.

There was good variety among vegetables cited as good buys. Once again, the list included cabbage, carrots, onions and new and old potatoes. Lettuce was rated a good buy, but produce men said there was a wide range in quality and nominated Romaine and Big Boston as the best bets. Other vegetables mentioned were spinach and radishes. Some stores featured corn and asparagus.

As its "food headliners," the U. S. Department of Agriculture selected potatoes, asparagus and onions, all of which are plentiful, with quality good.

Patrolman Urges County Drivers To Be Careful

"There's no substitute for careful driving."

With those words, State Patrolman Bob Greene Thursday urged all Pickaway County motorists to drive carefully now that good driving weather is here.

Speed consistent with conditions, a constant look-out for children and consideration for the other fellow were the points Greene stressed.

The Patrolman also reminded local drivers of the May campaign of the state patrol, being conducted in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

* * *

"GOOD DRIVERS drive safe cars—check your car, check accidents" is the May traffic safety slogan of the patrol.

Speed to suit conditions, ability to stop within a safe distance, keeping the car under control where children are present, "defensive driving" where you are alert for what the other fellow might do—many times these skills depend on the condition of your car, Greene explained.

Greene advised local motorists to "get acquainted" with their cars—to know something of the mechanics of the machine they were driving.

"If it seems to you something's wrong," he said, "fix it. Better still, have a good machanic look at it." He suggested motorists pay particular attention to brakes, lights, tires, wheel alignment, exhaust system, windshield wipers, glass, rear-view mirror and horn.

date for completion of the big job because it is going to require a large amount of specialized equipment, much of which will be of brand-new designs. Du Pont's success in getting delivery of such equipment on schedule, he explained, will determine how soon the unit can be turned over to the operating administration.

Main entrance to the finished plant will face Route 23. Front of the building will be reached by turning off to the right just beyond the viaduct over the C. and O. railroad tracks.

The railroad has already completed a long spur into the plant. Some of the big three-unit diesels have already nosed their way deep into the project, pioneers in a major increase seen for rail traffic on the southern edge of the city.

* * *

EVEN THE OLDEST structures on the property have been used to play their part in construction of the modern industrial unit. Given outside stairways and fire escapes, the old farmhouse on the property has been transformed into a beehive of field office activity.

Barns are bulging with construction supplies, and even a corn crib is utilized as a handy place to keep parts until needed.

The plant's own freight depot is a small but adequate building in clean white paint. It has a full-time agent and proclaims its name —Vee—from a station sign ato the structure.

"Mylar," the plastic-like film to be produced by the Circleville plant, was once designated as "V-film" in Du Pont's laboratories. Naming of the freight depot was in tribute to the days when "Mylar" was still running through its laboratory tests. "V-film" has made good.

The depot can handle less-than-carload shipments from the C and O main line. On full-carload shipments, trains move into the property on a "Y" branch track.

Reflecting the extent of preparation that went into the local project are the steps taken to eliminate that clutching foe of all big building jobs—mud.

Following through on the results of test borings made on the property in 1951, Du Pont's planners decided all topsoil should be removed from the project building area. A good bit of it will be put back in place so wide lawns can add beauty to the finished plant, but for the building crews the spot they're using is mud-proof.

* * *

THE MEN and machines are working on a floor of hard-packed sand and gravel, 35 feet above subterranean water. In mapping this phase of the project, Du Pont specialists made a detailed study of the district's geological history. Far better than many native residents, they know the story of the region's glacial age and what it left to build upon.

Already hidden in the sand and gravel base are networks of air and water lines that reach into all sections of the property. Designed only for use during the construction phase, they eliminate the need of portable units. Air pressure can always be tapped nearby. A turn of a wheel in similar fashion brings water.

Steam lines will be placed over the property in the same way when construction work moves into its heavier stages. Overhead around the edges of the property and through underground cables in the building area itself, power and telephone lines make up a major project of their own.

Many small communities require less equipment.

Last of the three main elements seen in the Du Pont story, as Circleville thus far has come to know it, is found in the people who are bringing the plant into existence.

It can't be measured by the success of accident prevention methods nor by the growing silhouette of structural steel. But in the way this intangible factor blends with the firm's safety-wise efficiency and know-how building routine, it is probably the most valuable in the whole achievement.

The task is charted on the premise that Du Pont people are important personalities in the sphere assigned to them—and not just cogs lost in a vast machine.

* * *

FROM McCOOK, in charge of the job, down to the latest "hard hat" hired for a relatively small construction detail, the human element has been tuned to the idea of doing the work right, on time and with a sense of satisfaction in the completed effort.

McCook's own enthusiasm sets the pace.

He attended Georgia Tech and Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has been engaged in major construction jobs since 1925. His father was an engineer and contractor, and McCook explains:

"I like all this, this is my work. It's the only kind of work I've ever done and probably the only kind I'll ever do. For me, this is duck soup."

As for his first glance at the Circleville plant site, he added:

"I liked it from the word go, even though the first day I saw it was one with plenty of snow and a howling cold wind. The first glance around told me that Du Pont would be able to do great things at Circleville."

* * *

"Hi, Jim."

"Lo, Cecil."

"Cecil," McCook explains, is an ironworker—typical of the hundreds of skilled men already working the job. And hundreds are yet to come.

Inside the administration building, already fitted with much of the office setup needed to guide a big plant's construction, the same cordiality prevails. First-name informality, for anyone who may not look beyond the surface of things, would conceal the high potential in the project's top construction team and its specialized aides.

Others in the high command directing the current phase include:

F. C. Baylis, assistant field project manager; Walter Johnson, service superintendent; Gene Clark, safety engineer in charge of the project's accident-prevention program; C. St. C. Pie, control superintendent; W. E. Shorr, planning superintendent; R. P. Wills, training superintendent.

McCook points out that some of the supervisory personnel have yet to be designated.

All the facilities of a firm interested in the well-being of its workers are evident over the project area.

* * *

MODERN CONSTRUCTION job advantages for the outdoor crews were among the first installed, including individual craft structures where men of the different skills can change their clothes, keep their lunches and otherwise gather for their on-job base of operations.

A "suggestion box" system encourages new ideas, and cash prizes wait for the ones that prove worthwhile.

A public address system, through a microphone at the main office switchboard, can carry routine insturctions or emergency orders all over the area. Military music is broadcast every now and then. It often adds to the relaxation mood of quitting time.

That's when the schedule of many things slows to an overnight halt at the big clearing south of the city, but never let it be said the project dozes when the automobiles begin to move out toward Route 23 in the late afternoon.

It was near the fag end of a working day when Sgt. Jim Diltz of the patrol force, on duty at the main gate, recognized the head man's car approaching and stepped out to meet it.

"A man who must have seen you two just came by," he grinned. "He said a couple of fellows were traveling around making sketches of the plant and figured we ought to know about it."

Du Pont's men are not only interested in building Circleville's largest industrial plant. They've already developed that partnership feeling!

Youthful Camper Drowns In Lake

ST. MARYS (AP)—Eugene Gruber, 14, drowned in Lake St. Marys Wednesday morning.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Gruber of Marion, Rt. 6, had been swimming with a group of schoolmates camping at the state park with the religious education instructor from their school.

Park officials used artificial respiration for an hour. Gruber's body was recovered about 45 minutes after he went down.

Mexican Lad's School Curbed By U.S. Ouster

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 16-year-old boy is going home to Mexico—but not without the diploma he came for.

"I wanted an American education, the best there is, and an opportunity to better myself," Jose Rodriquez Toscano told reporters yesterday at Georgia Street juvenile headquarters. He is held for deportation back to Mexico.

He said that two years ago, when his father died, he slipped across the border at Tijuana. He enrolled at St. Turibius School and earned all A's and B's while working at a market to support himself.

Sunday, three days before he was to graduate, police raided the home where he was staying and took him into custody.

Toledo To Get Large Airport

TOLEDO (AP)—Toledo is going to have a new municipal airport 15 miles west of the city.

The new field, approved in a special election Tuesday, will cost up to $3½ million and will replace the present field, which is too small to accommodate big, modern airliners. The vote was 23,795 to 9,827 to approve a law authorizing council to finance the airport's construction.

Continentals No More Romantic Than American Males, Says Renzo

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—American men are getting a name for being the world's best husbands — and among the world's poorest lovers.

This ugly rumor is based on a theory that the average European male understands a woman's heart and an American doesn't. But more and more American wives are accepting it as true.

Well, girls, it just isn't so. It isn't likely that anywhere on the freckled earth you'll find a man who knows you as well, appreciates you more, or will love you better than here in the home of the henpecked hubby.

"We have overemphasized this belief that American men are not good lovers, and their wives are all frustrated," said Renzo Cesana, who woos and sometimes wows the ladies in his television and radio role, "The Continental.

Renzo, a sophisticated realist, has made something of a study of romance in both his native Italy and his adopted land, America.

He feels too many women have read Dr. Kinsey's clinical study of the American male and reached the conclusion they are missing some of the finer things of life through husbandly ignorance or ineptitude.

"The European woman is as frustrated as the American woman, if not more so," he said. "But she simply doesn't get the chance to protest as loud."

"The American has no reason to have an inferiority complex about sex," he said. "If Dr. Kinsey polled European men about matters of love, and they told him the truth, he would find them much less informed than American men.

"But they wouldn't tell him the truth. They would simply brag. When it comes to affairs of the heart, a European would lie to his own psychiatrist.

"The average European is sure he is a greater epicure and a greater lover than the American. But he isn't. He doesn't know as much about either food or women as the average American, because he doesn't have the opportunity to get acquainted with them in the same variety and abundance."

Cesana estimated "perhaps 75 per cent of European women" are frustrated in love—far more than in America—but don't know how to raise a holler about it. Who would listen to them anyway?

"The European lover is supposed to be more experienced, but this is ridiculous," he remarked. "Here boy meets girl early, and the two sexes get over their fear of each other very young. In Europe a man ordinarily knows nothing about the opposite sex until after he is married."

But don't American husbands take their wives for granted? Aren't Europeans more romantic and gallant?

"It is the other way around," said Renzo. "In America women take men for granted. As for those little attentions that women love, the American husband probably brings more flowers to his wife in a year than the European does in lifetime."

Well, ladies, there's the picture —the guy you're tied to may have his dopey days and dull nights, but he's still the best bargain in the dismal male field.

Now for a peek at the other side of the coin. Renzo is billed as "the world's greatest lover." What is his idea of the perfect woman

"Most men like the women who like them," he said. "That may be lazy of them, but it is true. It is the same with me. It is always the woman who makes the choice."

Despondent Blind Man Takes Life

LOUDONVILLE (AP)—A blind father of two blind children hanged himself in a jail cell here Wednesday after seeking a place to sleep.

Pennington, who operated a food concession in Columbus, was en route to Akron to visit his father, Eno Pennington. Surviving are his wife, Betty, 32, and two children in the Columbus blind school, Madalyn, 9, and Daile, 7.

Siamese Twins Die In Hospital

INVERNESS, N. S. (AP) — The Siamese twin boys born here Tuesday died last night about 33 hours after birth.

Hospital officials said the death of the babies, whose breast bones were joined, was due to the fact the 19-year-old mother, Mrs. Max Wyrwas, was in a toxic condition before their birth. She was reported in good condition last night. The babies earlier yesterday had appeared in good health.

KIDNEYS MUST REMOVE EXCESS WASTE

Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slowdown of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.

Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was a nice fight while it lasted.

Rep. Daniel Allen Reed, New York Republican, had his heart set on cutting taxes in 1953. He seemed so truly angry Monday, when he heard President Eisenhower wants no tax cuts this year, that he said: "When I fight, I fight."

Yesterday, one day later, he yielded ground to the Eisenhower forces. And before many weeks are over he 77-year-old Reed, with 35 years in the House, may find himself boxed in and beaten. He's boxed in a little now.

Reed, oldest Republican in the House in continuous service, is chairman of one of the most powerful committees in Congress, the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax problems and writes bills to boost or cut taxes.

When expenses began piling up after the outbreak of the Korean War in mid-1950 Congress slapped an excess profits tax on corporations and upped individual income taxes about 11 per cent.

The excess profits tax was scheduled to die automatically next June 30 and the individual tax boost was due to end the same way Dec. 31, an arrangement giving some corporations a tax reduction six months before individuals got one.

Reed decided to move up the reduction for individuals six months and let them get a tax cut the same day as corporations, June 30. His like-minded committee voted overwhelmingly for such action.

The committee members were perhaps not unmindful that all House members must face the voters again in 1954 and that giving individuals a break on the same day corporations got it might not be harmful on election day.

Reed didn't pitch his desire for a tax cut on that plane. He said his Republican party had promised to reduce taxes in 1953 and that if this weren't done the people would have been "sold down the river."

The vote in Reed's committee—made up of 15 Republicans and 10 Democrats—was 21 to 4. Twelve Republicans and nine Democrats were for cutting individual taxes June 30 instead of waiting till Dec. 31. One Democrat and three Republicans opposed this.

Their action was taken Feb. 16, with the Eisenhower administration in office less than one month, and in spite of the President's request to go slow on whittling taxes until he had a chance to balance the budget first.

Plenty of Democrats and Republicans felt as Reed did, for various reasons, no doubt. But the Republican leadership in the House began to give Reed a bad time. His tax-cutting bill was sent to the rules committee, which clears bills to the House floor. The rules committee hasn't acted.

Reed fussed and fumed. Then Eisenhower set him back on his heels Tuesday night by saying he wanted no tax cuts this session.

The President asked Congress to vote to keep the excess profits tax until Dec. 31, when it could expire at the same time as the boost in individual income taxes.

The President said this was necessary for a sound economy; but it also looked pretty sound from the viewpoint of political strategy.

Individuals will be less apt to be mad—at having to wait for their tax reduction until the scheduled date, Dec. 31—so long as many corporations also have to wait until then for a cut in their taxes.

A congressman who reasoned that way wouldn't have much trouble switching from support of Reed to opposition to Reed. And Reed himself promptly faced a new problem:

If Congress was to consider and act on Eisenhower's request to extend the excess profits tax, Reed's committee should first hold hearings to let corporations and all other interested parties state their views.

If Reed refused to do this, he could be accused of discourteous defiance of the President. It might lose him support in the House. He agreed to hold the hearings, beginning June 1.

And—one day after Eisenhower spoke, some of Reed's own committee, who wanted taxes cut, began to weaken. Reed's fight may not be over. But he's already lost a lot of momentum.

Germans Giving Pledge On Trade

BONN (AP)—The West German government has given "categorical assurances" to the United States it will not supply the Soviet Union with strategic goods after resuming formal trade relations with Moscow, a high American official reports.

The West Germans are now studying an offer from the Russians to revive their once lucrative exchange of goods which was interrupted by World War II and the cold war.

Hush-Hush U.S. School Tells A-Data

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany (AP)—Uncle Sam is teaching some of the secrets of atomic warfare to his NATO allies here in one of the world's most peaceful spots.

Opening of the atomic warfare school in picturesque Oberammergau, scene of the famous passion play every 10th year, didn't cause even a ripple among the townsfolk.

A sun-bronzed mountain climber wearing traditional leather knee britches twisted the ends of his handlebar mustache and said in his deep-throated Bavarian dialect that he wasn't interested in the school one way or the other.

A blonde, buxom German fraulein carrying a basket of flowers said she had never heard of it. Neither had the pipe-smoking owner of a novelty shop in the heart of the village.

The school is located in a closely guarded military compound overlooking the town, which was used by Hitler's 54th Mountain Signal Battalion during the war. It is surrounded by a high rock wall and barbed wire fences. Armed guards maintain 24-hour vigilance in prison-type watch towers.

Russian Losses In War Outlined

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—A Defense Department spokesman ridicules the idea that Russia hasn't lost anything in three years of Korean fighting.

Col. W. F. Rockwell said in a speech yesterday that pessimists point out that Russia "hasn't suffered the loss of a man in that time."

"They should be told," he added, "about the setback of the five-year plan since Soviet Russia has been furnishing war goods to her fighting powers.

"Moscow reports show that output of machine tools was increasing 18 per cent a year for several years prior to 1950 but dropped to 3 per cent last year."

Want to make a quick getaway?

The nearest we can come to word-picturing for you how it feels to drive a 1953 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow* is this:

When you toe the gas treadle, you can get away like silked lightning in a silent hurry.

More specifically, you can sweep your speedometer needle from zero to a legal 30 mph in the time you normally take two breaths.

It takes more than the advanced new engineering of this fully automatic transmission to produce such thrilling performance, of course. It takes power, too.

And that's here in full measure—the highest horsepowers and compression ratios, Series for Series, in Buick's fifty great years—with the world's most advanced V8 engine powering the SUPER and ROADMASTER.

There's a lot more you get in any 1953 Buick in generous and hard-to-match measure—room, comfort, visibility, ride steadiness—and, above all, value.

But these are things you must discover for yourself—as you must the greatest Buick performance in history.

Why not drop in on us real soon? We'll be happy to put you at the wheel of a new Buick and let our points prove themselves.

Redlegs Swing Heavy Sticks Against Phils

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs hit four home runs Wednesday as they dug themselves out of the National League cellar with a 14-5 victory over the loop-leading Philadelphia Phils.

The Cincinnatians now have won five of their last eight games and have hit 17 home runs in those eight contests with Ted Kluszewski and Willard Marshall two each and Bob Marquis, Gus Bell and Bobby Adams one each.

Wednesday it was Kluszewski, Seminick, Borkowski and Adams on the swinging end of the home run bats.

The Phils' starting pitcher, Curt Simmons, was blasted to the sidelines during a six-run fourth inning which came when Simmons was nursing a 2-1 lead.

A single by Borkowski was followed by Kluszewski's homer. Simmons got the next two out and the trouble really hit.

He walked Howie Judson. Rocky Bridges doubled and both he and Judson came home on Adams' single. Gus Bell doubled Adams home and Bob Miller came to Simmons' reecue. He got the side out after Greengrass singled Bell home.

Willie Jones' two run homer helped the Phils cut the Cincinnati margin to 7-5 but it was only a dying threat.

Athletic Trainers Schedule Parley

Bosox Find Trouble With Eastern Clubs

Western Outfits Fall Easily Before Rush Of Fenway Park Crew

By The Associated Press

If the Boston Red Sox can figure out some way to beat the other Eastern teams they will be a real pennant threat in the American Legaue. They've got the Western clubs solved for sure.

The Sox finished up a profitable home stand against the West in sensational fashion yesterday. With two out in the 14th inning—the season's longest game — Del Wilbur blasted his third pinch-hit home run of the year to give them a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

Wilbur's blow off Don Larsen propelled Boston all the way from fourth place to second in the standings, three games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees.

The Red Sox have the best intersectional record in either league. They burned up the West early this month on a 6-2 road trip and then won six more and lost only two when the Western teams came in to visit Fenway Park.

Against the Eastern clubs, however, the Sox have won just five while losing eight. They have a chance to correct this immediately since Philadelphia comes to Boston for a three-game series starting today. Then the Sox take the road in the East.

The Eastern American League clubs as a whole were downright inhospitable to their Western visitors during the intersectional series and all four of them ended with victories. The Athletics defeated Chicago, 2-1. Washington whipped Cleveland, 8-3, and New York trimmed Detroit, 9-8. All in all the Eastern teams won 20 and lost 11 during the West-East meetings which began May 12.

In the National League the Western teams, playing at home, managed to gain the upper hand, but only by a margin of 16 games to 13. In yesterday's finales Cincinnati thumped the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies, 14-5; Milwaukee bowed for the second straight day to Brooklyn, 7-2; Chicago took a 16-6 lacing from the New York Giants and St. Louis won an 11-6 slugfest from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Yesterday's action provided a little of everything, from the 14-inning duel in Boston to the 31-hit explosions in Chicago and St. Louis.

The Giants collected 21 hits, a season's record, good for 39 bases, in smothering the Cubs. Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Davey Williams attack also included three doubles and three triples. The victory was the fourth in a row for the improving Giants.

Curt Simmons, the Phillies' ace left-hander who retired 27 Milwaukee players in order after Bill Bruton singled Saturday night, couldn't last four innings against the Cincinnati Redlegs. He gave up seven hits and seven runs before heading for cover in the fourth. The Redlegs pulled out of the cellar and into seventh place with their triumph, which included home runs by Ted Kluszewski, Andy Seminick Bobby Adams and Bob Borkowski.

Pittsburgh fell to last place by losing to the Cardinals, who pounded out 17 hits. Red Schoendienst drove home six of the Cardinal tallies with a perfect night at bat. His four hits included a home run, two doubles and a single.

Brooklyn stole six bases in handing Milwaukee its first series loss at home. The crowd of 23,450 who watched the track meet in misery swelled the Braves' home attendance to 302,667 for 13 home dates, 21,389 more than the club drew all last season in Boston.

In a game filled with misplays, the Yankees edged Detroit in the last of the ninth on Gene Woodling's bases-loaded single. The Yankees used 21 players, two short of the record they set Sunday against the Browns, and the 21st man, Allie Reynolds, who came in to pitch the ninth, got credit for the victory.

Frank Shea throttled the Indians on two hits for seven innings but had to withdraw with a stiff neck. The Indians picked up five hits and three runs on his successor, Johnny Schmitz, but the Senators had sewed it up with six runs in the seventh off Bob Hooper and Steve Gromek. Bobby Feller, who worked the first six for Cleveland, was the loser for the third time this season. He has won once.

Philadelphia's winning run against the White Sox came in the ninth when Billy Pierce, trying for his sixth victory, walked three men, uncorked a wild pitch and then watched light-hitting Joe Astroth deliver a run-scoring single.

Leaders In AA All Defeated

KANSAS CITY (AP)—League-leading Kansas City, Indianapolis and Louisville remained separated by a mere 1½ games in the American Association's hot first division jockeying Thursday.

All three of the leaders were defeated Wednesday night. Fourth-place St. Paul, only two games out of the lead, edged Kansas City 5-3 and Charleston stopped the Indians 9-6. Minneapolis chalked a 3-1 decision over Louisville and toledo shaded Columbus 5-4.

Baseball Team Forfeits For Using Negro

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Hot Springs of the Cotton States League presumably will decide today whether to forfeit every game in which it attempts to play a Negro pitcher or cease its efforts to introduce Negroes into the three-state loop.

The cellar-dwelling Bathers, who recalled Jim Tugerson—a Florence Villa, Fla., Negro right-hander—from Knoxville and attempted to play him Wednesday, were forced to forfeit the game to Jackson, Miss., 9-0, on orders from League President Al Haraway.

Haraway said Hot Springs had "violated an agreement reached in Greenville, Miss., on April 14."

He ordered the Class C loop umpires to forfeit every game to the opposing club when Tugerson's name appears on the roster.

Club co-owner Lewis Goltz said the directors would meet today to settle the issue "once and for all." He termed the agreement "illegal and contrary to federal law."

And from Natchez, Miss., came a hint that the league may try once again to oust the Bathers from the eight-team circuit.

Tom Glennon, Natchez Indian general manager, said his club fully approved Haraway's action and planned to call the president concerning a meeting.

"If the league takes action against Hot Springs, that may mean a revision of the league schedule," he said.

Tribe Drops Into Fourth Place In AL

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Indians grabbed the fastest transportation available, an airplane, and whizzed home after Wednesday night's 8-3 loss to the Washington Senators dropped them into fourth place.

They're off today, but open a four game series with the St. Louis Browns Friday night.

The Nats scored six runs in the seventh frame off relief pitchers Bob Hooper and Steve Gromek. But it was Bob Feller, again the victim of weak hitting by his teammates, who took the loss.

Feller was removed for a pinch hitter after holding Washington to two runs in six innings.

Frank (Spec) Shea was the victor. He pitched seven scoreless innings, then was removed because of a stiff shoulder. The Indians did manage to score three runs in the ninth off southpaw Johnny Schmitz but it was a little late.

The Senators got 16 hits of four pitchers, Feller, Hooper, Gromek and Ted Wilks, and ex-Clevelander Mickey Vernon had four of them—a double and three singles.

Turner Collects Win Over Hayes

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A driving, ever-busy Jesse Turner, who wants "more and more fights," punched his way into the nation's television screens Wednesday night with an impressive unanimous decision over Norman Hayes of Boston in a 10-rounder at the Arena.

Turner, a 23-year-old St. Louisan, gave up eight and one-half pounds to a more experienced Hayes, ranked 10th among the middleweights. Turner weighed in at 154½ to 163 for Hayes.

Korean POW Gets Pacer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pfc. Joseph Picerno's one desire while in a Korean War prison camp was to own a trotter or pacer when he returned to the States.

That desire became a fact Wednesday when the Springfield Gardens, N. Y., GI was presented with Your Time, a three-year-old full sister to Good Time, champion money winning harness racer of all time owned by William Cane.

Cane, president of the Yonkers Raceway, the track and Roosevelt Raceway have arranged to "lease" the pacing filly to Picerno.

Singing Sword Trots To Win

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP) — Singing Sword, an eligible for this year's Hambletonian, scored an impressive victory Wednesday in a $5,000 trot for three-year-olds at Yonkers Raceway.

A crowd of 24,061 saw Jimmy Jordan bring Singing Sword to the top at the three quarter pole and win by a half length. The time for the mile was 2:07.4, fastest for a three-year-old trotter this year.

Torch Key finished second but was placed third for a running break in the stretch. Worth While was moved up into second.

Senator Keeps Chair For Guy 'Back Home'

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the office of Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) is a chair labeled "reserved"—a chair in which no one ever sits.

Placed so that it faces the senator when he is seated behind his desk the chair, he said, is a mute reminder to him "of the man who isn't there."

He explained in an interview: "Lots of people come into this office. They ask this or that. They support one thing or another. But 99 per cent of the people from Mississippi — probably more than that—never get up here to state their views. That chair is to remind me of them.

"The average man doesn't belong to any pressure group. He's just a good citizen. He doesn't talk much. He just listens. I want to be sure I don't forget him. That chair is for him—the man who isn't there."

He Tried Hard To Punish Himself

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A garage mechanic was recovering at Charleston General Hospital today after:

1. Slitting his throat with a razor blade.
2. Setting his room on fire and getting burned in the process.
3. Hitting himself on the head 13 times with a hammer.

Fire Capt. Claude Saunders said Ralph H. Ball, 49, admitted in a signed statement inflicting all this punishment on himself but would give no reason for his actions.

Mid-July End To Congress Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) says Congress should "go home about the middle of July and stay home until January."

"President Eisenhower was elected by the greatest majority ever given a candidate for president," Wiley said in a statement yesterday. "I am willing to trust him with the reins of government for six months."

Sokolsky's These Days

"The fifth nation, India, has more than 80 per cent of the time, since the Korean War broke out, voted with the Communist side or abstained."

What India wants the United States to do is to accept willy-nilly the Russian terms as presented at Panmunjom. This will seal our defeat in the Korean War and will please India no end because of the Indians' intense hatred for the Anglo-Saxon countries. The defeat of the United States would be a victory not only for Mao but for Nehru as well.

Such a concession on our part, such an appeasement, will not make a Tito out of Mao Tze-tung. He has been in the International Communist Movement since about 1920 when he was a student at the Peking National University.

He has been thoroughly trained in Kremlin thinking and in Kremlin techniques. It would take an intellectual and spiritual cataclysm for Mao Tze-tung to break with his entire life as an adult. Nothing in the known facts of the Chinese situation would indicate that such a cataclysm has occurred or is in the offing.

To substitute the imagined for the known; to accept the hope for the reality; to reject available date for inspired improvisations is not statesmanship; it is amateurs playing with the lives of citizens.

Ohio Farmers Definitely Restless About Farm Prices

Voting Shows Full Parity Is Wanted

Federal Support Most Sought As Aid To Growers

Three out of four Ohio farmers are seriously worried about the decline in farm prices.

This was determined in a series of special farmer meetings throughout Ohio last Thursday, where polls were taken to establish the feelings of the farmers about parity and price supports.

In Pickaway County, farmers definitely showed their unease with falling prices, but were uncertain as to the best possible method of establishing parity, a term meaning an equivalent amount of produce today would buy the same commodities as the same amount during the period before price increases.

While 56 percent of the 4,938 Ohio farmers who gave their opinions last week at county "farm price rallies" think Secretary of Agriculture Benson is "doing a good job," 31 percent are uncertain and 13 percent disapprove his actions.

* * *

THE OHIO Farm Bureau is in Washington with 40 farm men and women who are its legislative spokesmen. They come from every congressional district in Ohio and, during their two-day stay, these farm people are to talk with their senators and congressmen about falling farm prices.

Ohio farmers want 100 per cent of parity, the polls showed. They feel they should have the same purchasing power as labor and industry.

Parity means equality. If it took two bushels of wheat to buy a pair of overalls in 1930 to 1940, then two bushels of wheat ought to buy a pair of overalls today.

The poll showed 91 per cent of Ohio farmers think they should do all they can for themselves through cooperatives, research, advertising and orderly marketing before they go to the government for help.

However, three out of four farmers, 74 per cent, believe there should be a government pric support program. Ten per cent of the farmers are undecided and only 16 per cent are opposed. When a similar question was asked Ohio farmers in January, 1952, 39 per cent of them wanted no government price support program.

Asked to indicate specific support programs, Ohio farmers expressed a wide difference of opinion. There were 28 per cent who thought the government should support farm prices only at a level which would prevent disaster.

BARIABLE PRICE supports of 75 to 90 per cent of parity with the Secretary of Agriculture having authority to make adjustments depending upon production needs won the favor of 32 per cent of those voting. A year ago January, only 14 per cent voted this way.

There was a surprising lack of confidence in the present farm legislation, with only 17 per cent of the farmers believing the government should continue to guarantee 90 per cent of parity on basic commodities.

There are some Ohio farmers who think the government should guarantee 100 per cent of parity on all basic commodities, and this was the reply of 15 per cent of those voting. Another 8 percent would extend this government guarantee to cover both storables and perishables. Those who hold this view number about the same as in January, 1952, when 27 per cent asked for 100 per cent government guarantees.

The only other question in the poll dealt with foreign trade. Farm exports are only about two-thirds of what they were in 1951.

"Do you favor increased foreign trade if it means increased imports of farm products as well as increased exports?" the poll question was stated. Yet 59 per cent answered yes, with 21 per cent disagreeing. A sizable 20 per cent could not make up their minds.

The Ohio Farm Bureau legislative group met with the Ohio congressional delegation at a breakfast Wednesday. Following that, they were to talk with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and other farm leaders.

'Chiseling' On Hospital Insurance Hit

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dr. Paul B. Magnuson said last night that too much "chiseling" on hospitalization insurance, backed by physicians, is overloading the nation's hospitals.

In an interview prior to a speech to the St. Louis Medical Society, Dr. Magnuson said, "There are a lot of people in hospitals who shouldn't be there, who should be treated in their homes."

He said too often a person tells his physician he has hospitalization insurance so treatment may as well be administered in the hospital. The physician agrees, he said, because "it's easier for him to treat a lot of people in the hospital than in their homes.

"This not only overcrowds the hospitals, but it runs up the costs of hospitalization insurance for other people."

As a remedy Dr. Magnuson advocated hospitalization insurance which he likened to $50 deducitble automobile insurance, under which the car owner pays the first $50 of any damage to his machine.

The physician said he would not set a dollar limit, but would require the patient to pay the first full week of his hospital bill before his insurance would go into effect.

Britain Remembers General Marshall

LONDON (AP)—As a token of gratitude for U. S. Marshall Plan aid, Britain is establishing scholarships for 12 American men and women to study at British universities each year.

The Foreign Office announced last night the first of the awards will be given next April. They will be known as "Marshall Scholarships," in honor of Gen. George C. Marshall.

70th Year—120

Senate Sharply Divided On Air Force Slashes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration's explanation of its decision to cut the Air Force goal from 143 to 120 wings and slash its funds $5 billion has left a sharp division in Senate ranks.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich), chairman of an appropriations subcommittee considering the new defense budget, said he believes Secretary of Defense Wilson "has made a good case for the new program."

"After all, the 143-wing goal of the Truman administration was just a paper target that could not be hit," Ferguson said. "Secretary Wilson assures us he has more money now than will be spent in the next fiscal year."

Sen. Hill D-Ala), also a member of the committee, disagreed sharply. He said:

"Mr. Wilson certainly has not convinced me, nor apparently most other members of the committee. He will have to justify the five billion dollar cut in the Air Forces before I'll ever vote for it."

Wilson has spent a good portion of the last two days before the Senate group, under questioning about the administration plan.

It proposes cutting the Air Force goal for mid-1955 from 143 wings to 120, each containing from 30 to 75 planes.

The revised Pentagon budget also calls for about $5 billion less in new funds for the Air Force in the fiscal year starting July 1. President Eisenhower, in his radio address Tuesday night, said 60 cents of every defense dollar will still be going into Navy and Air Force air power.

Wilson told the senators Wednesday that the 143-wing goal of the Truman administration had been slipping further from realization for more than three years and he added:

Ferguson said discussion about "a certain number of wings or so many unspent billions is only confusing."

"Under the revised 120-wing interim goal of the Eienhower administration this nation should have a lot more modern combat planes and much more striking power than the unreached 143-wing paper target," he said.

Wilson and Deputy Secretary Roger M. Kyes stressed that even with the reduced appropriations request the Air Force will have $40 billion to spend after July 1, counting unspent funds voted by previous Congresses.

They said only about $15 billion would be spent during the next fiscal year.

Even if Congress restored the $5 billion cut from the old Truman budget, Wilson said, "we could not spend any part of it in '54 to strengthen the nation's air position."

Bermuda Is Expected To Be Scene Of Ike, Churchill, Mayer Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain and Premier Mayer of France will meet soon, probably in Bermuda, in an effort to advance the cause of world peace.

Announcing this today, the White House said the meeting of the Big Three leaders probably will be held the latter part of June.

The French foreign office said the meeting will start June 17 in Bermuda. In London, Churchill gave no specific date.

Just after the announcement was made, the French National Assembly denied Premier Mayer a vote of confidence and his Cabinet—the 18th since liberation—collapsed. It was not immediately known how this would affect the three-power talks.

In Congress, initial general reaction was to approve the idea of trying to improve understanding among the Western powers. Some expressed hope the Eisenhower-Churchill - Mayer meeting might lead to a session with the Russians.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) said the Big Three meeting should "very much clear the air" of long distance arguments between the Senate and the British House of Commons,

* * *

SEN. GILLETTE (D-Iowa) commented that the meeting "could scarcely fail to be of value," but said it would "perhaps be more encouraging if the meeting were to include all permanent members of the United Nations Security Council" including Russia.

Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) called the idea a "very good one" and added: "I hope that in the meantime (between now and the meeting) Great Britain and France can try to understand our opposition to forc-

Taft-Hartley Law Changes Coming

Virtual Closed Shop For Building Trade Unions Seen In New Setup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican members of the Senate Labor Committee were said today to have agreed on Taft-Hartley law amendments which would all but grant the closed shop to the building trades unions.

The amendments, now being put into a formal committee draft for public distribution next week, were described by senators who declined to be quoted by name.

The changes in the law, some of them promised by President Eisenhower in campaign speeches last fall, were agreed to by Republican members of the committee.

Committee Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) is expected to announce them next Monday. The changes can be expected before the full committee agrees on a comprehensive bill to amend the law.

The changes include:

1. Unions whose members customarily work in "casual employment," such as construction work, would be allowed to write work contracts with an employer before work actually starts.

* * *

AND WORKERS on the project would have to join the union seven days after work started. For all other employment, the present union shop provision would remain—that is, a worker cannot be compelled to join the union until 30 days after he takes his job. The full closed shop, now banned, compels workers to join the union before they go on the job.

2. Most public utilities and hundreds of small businesses would be exempt from all Taft-Hartley coverage. This would be done by changing the present law's definition of businesses covered by the federal law. No business would be specifically named.

The present definition would be changed so that, in the case of utilities, any concern engaged in the selling of gas, heat, light and water would be exempt so long as 75 per cent of its business was done within a single state.

3. Building service employes would be exempt. These include janitors and elevator operators.

4. Two members would be added to the five-man National Labor Relations Board. This would give President Eisenhower a chance to appoint four new members within the next few months. Board Chairman Paul M. Herzog has resigned effective June 30 and board member John M. Houston's term expires this summer.

5. Workers out on a legal strike would be permitted to vote in NLRB election cases, even if replaced by other workers. Eisenhower has said the present law might be used to "bust unions" and his remark was widely interpreted as a reference to the present ban on voting by legal strikers.

The present law's 80-day nostrike provision for use in national emergency disputes would be retained.

Soviet Bomber Total Revealed

900-1,000 Long-Range Ships Believed Ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia now has between 900 and 1,000 planes in operating units of its long-range bombing force, according to a new estimate of Soviet war power.

These are described as TU4 four-engined bombers, an improved version of the U. S. Air Force's B29. They represent only those aircraft in organized, ready to-operate squadrons.

The TU4s are considered capable of reaching virtually any large industrial city in the U. S. with atomic bombs.

The calculations of Soviet war making capabilities place the number of Red interceptor planes in operationally ready units at several thousand. Actually, these figures are fairly definite, but the exact numbers used in official estimates may not be disclosed.

* * *

IN THE PAST, there have been unofficial estimates that the total number of aircraft in the Red air force, of all types and ages, is about 40,000.

Secretary of Defense Wilson told a news conference last week the U. S. Air Force now has in excess of 20,000 planes, the Navy and Marine Corps about 9,900.

Wednesday, during an appearance before a Senate committee, Deputy Secretary of Defense Roger M. Kyes was asked about comparative air strength. A committee member commented that everyone knows Russia has more planes than the U. S. Kyes said:

"I don't subscribe to that."

Wilson, in a committee appearance Tuesday, said it was difficult to determine the exact size of the Soviet air arm. The secretary said he thinks the U. S. has more long-range bombers than Russia.

House GOP Chief Sees Hope Of Extending Profits Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Leader Halleck of Indiana said today he was "very optimistic" about chances for House approval of President Eisenhower's request to extend the excess profits tax on business.

But Republican opponents of the measure disclosed a series of strategy moves aimed at defeating or amending the proposal.

These were developments after a full day of backstage maneuvering yesterday on an issue that has developed into one of the sternest tests so far of Eisenhower's leadership with Congress.

At a conference with Halleck and House Speaker Joseph Martin (R-Mass), Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee agreed to hold hearings June 1-10 on Eisenhower's request.

This request, sent formally to Congress Wednesday after being outlined in the President's radio talk Tuesday night, exhorts Congress to cut no taxes this year.

* * *

EISENHOWER said he wants lower taxes as much as anybody but he said a reduction now would be inflationary.

He proposed this six-point tax program: extend the excess profits tax six months past its June 30 expiration date; don't cut corporation income taxes 5 per cent, as scheduled on April 1; postpone the one-half per cent increase scheduled Jan. 1 in social security taxes; don't cut excise taxes on April 1, as scheduled; don't cut income taxes for individuals until Jan. 1, then allow a 10 per cent cut already scheduled; go easy on all tax matters until Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey details the administration's program "by the end of the year."

The House Ways and Means Committee's decision to hold hearings on Eisenhower's request was a victory for the administration.

Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) has been adamant in insisting on tax cuts, and some Republicans had doubted whether Eisenhower's plan would ever be brought before the committee.

Further, the administration made inroads on what previously had been a solid lineup of all 15 committee Republicans against any extension of the excess profits tax, now bringing an estimated $2½ billion a year.

Several who attended the conference said it was clear some Republican committee members have switched over and will support the President.

Spelling Bee Underway To Pick Champion

WASHINGTON (AP)—The 26th national spelling bee got underway here today with all but two of the 53 contestants surviving the first round, but more, including the Ohio entrant, falling in the second round.

Two girls, Alta Jackson, 14, of Quail, Tex., and Patricia M. Herbert, 13, of Manchester, N. H., were the first to falter.

Alta spelled "community" with only one 'm' and Patricia similarly dropped an "m" out of "immediate."

Four contestants dropped out in the second round as the words became increasingly hard.

Soil-Building Proposal Put Off By Polk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Polk (D-Ohio) changed his mind Wednesday and decided not to offer a proposal to increase soil conservation payments to $25 million next year.

He did so when soil conservation proponents in the House barely saved a $195 million item proposed by the House Appropriations Committee for that purpose.

Polk indicated he felt his proposal would have slight chance in view of the small margin by which the House prevented a cutback in this fund to $140 million.

The soil conservation item is contained in a bill to provide funds for the Agriculture Department during the year that starts July 1.

Democrats against: Crosser, Hays, Polk and Secrest.

Independent against: Reams.

With Oatis Freed, Czechs Ask U.S. To Keep Its 'Deal'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist Czechoslovakia, in freeing Associated Press Correspondent William N. Oatis, acted six weeks after President Eisenhower offered to consider easing trade and travel restrictions against the Czechs.

The White House Thursday night released copies of messages exchanged between Eisenhower and new Czech President Antonin Zapotocky.

Eisenhower's message, dated March 30, told Zapotocky that if he would release Oatis the U. S. would be willing to negotiate lifting of sanctions imposed against Czechoslovakia when the newsman was jailed 25 months ago.

Zapotocky's reply, dated May 15, informed Eisenhower that Oatis was being pardoned on that day and would not have to complete the rest of his 10 year sentence on conviction of "spying."

U. S. Ambassador George Wadsworth and Czech Prime Minister Siroky handled the exchange between the two chief executives.

* * *

THE CZECH government through its controlled radio today called for the U. S. to terminate its economic restrictions against the country now that Oatis is free.

Radio Prague, heard in Vienna, broadcast the text of the notes to Czech listeners and quoted an editorial from the Czech Communist party organ, Rude Pravo, calling on Eisenhower to lift the sanctions.

The restrictions were these:

1. A barrier to Czech exports to the U. S., which had been running up to $20 million a year.

2. A ban on oil exports from the U. S. to Czechoslovakia.

3. A policy against travel to Czechoslovakia by any American not on essential business.

4. A ban against flights of Czech commercial planes over the U. S. zone of Germany.

In his public announcement of Oatis' freeing May 15, Zapotocky had said he acted on a direct appeal for mercy from Mrs. Oatis.

At that time the U. S. State Department said "there wasn't any deal" between the U. S. and Czechoslovakia to free the newsman.

Thursday night, Oatis issued a statement in New York in which he denied ever spying for the American Embassy while a newsman in Czechoslovakia.

He said "the cause of my trouble" was that he got news tips from sources other than official Czech news outlets, then checked them with the U. S. Embassy in an effort to gain more information.

Such practice is routine in Western countries, he said, but under Czech law "can be construed to be espionage."

Solons Shun Chiropractor Test Board

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio House of Representatives Wednesday killed a proposal for a separate board to license chiropractors. The bill lost last Thursday, but a motion was made to reconsider the defeat.

But Wednesday's rejection of the motion to reconsider killed the proposal. Licensing of chiropractors will continue to be handled by the state medical board.

House refusal to accept Senate amendments in a bill proposing higher active-duty pay for enlisted men of the state militia forced the bill into a joint conference committee. The House approved a pay scale of $3 a day plus subsistence allowances. The Senate voted Tuesday to boost the pay scale to $8 a day on grounds militiamen lose their pay from their regular jobs.

The House passed and sent back to the Senate for consideration of minor amendments the bill merging three legislative bureaus. Senate approval of amendments will complete enactment of the measure to combine the Legislative Research Commission, the Code Revision Commission and the Ohio Program Commission.

The House also passed a Senate-approved bill to put common pleas and probate judges on the same salary basis. It also requires attorneys to wait six years after passing the bar examination before they can become judges.

The Senate passed and sent to the House without a dissenting vote a bill to permit up to 90-day jail sentences for first offenses of excessive cruelty to animals.

Auto Workers Facing Layoffs

DETROIT (AP) — Layoffs engulfed or threatened 150,000 or more auto workers today as half a dozen major manufacturers reported their flow of parts choked off by strikes.

Ford, Chrysler, Studebaker, Willys, Nash and International Harvester all figured in the mushrooming production cuts.

Editors Getting Short Handshake

WASHINGTON (AP)—The official Washington handshake for large groups has been clocked by the White House at 4.3 seconds.

President Eisenhower's calling list today scheduled a hand-shaking with a group of business paper editors beginning at 11:45 a. m. The list called for Eisenhower to leave the White House at 11:55 a. m., for a luncheon. That allows 10 minutes for the handshaking. There are 140 editors in the group. That means about 4.3 seconds apiece.

Leading Jet Aces Getting New Medals

SEOUL (AP)—The world's leading jet aces, two Americans who destroyed 30 Red Migs over Korea, started toward home today.

They are stopping over in Tokyo briefly to receive more medals.

Then they'll go on to the United States, where Apple Valley, Calif., is planning a welcome for McConnell and Miami, Fla., is planning a celebration for Fernandez.

Both were retired from combat against their wishes.

"We prefer not to wear them out completely on this show," said Lt. Gen. Glenn O. Barcus, U. S. Fifth Air Force commander.

Meanwhile, counterattacking South Korean infantrymen threw 150 to 200 Chinese Reds off an eastern front ridge after 12 hours of close-quarter seesaw fighting.

Stubborn Rok soldiers clung to the eastern end. The Reds threw back two South Korean counterattacks, but Rok reinforcements were thrown into the battle before dawn and after six hours of fierce fighting the Reds called it quits.

New Tax Rap Faces Broker

CLEVELAND (AP) — While lawyers of a former Lorain food broker prepared today to appeal his conviction for income tax evasion in 1945, federal attorneys considered new action against him on a $500,000 claim for income taxes in 1944 and 1946.

A federal jury took only 2½ hours to convict S. Jacob Sens, 47, now of New York City, of evading $68,000 in 1945 income taxes. The verdict Wednesday afternoon ended a trial begun May 11. Judge Charles J. McNamee sentenced Sens to two years in jail and fined him $3,000. Pending appeal, Sens was released on $10,000 bail.

Ohio Postoffices Slated For Probe

Du Pont Plant-Building Project Rolling Along On Schedule

(EDITOR'S NOTE: To tell of progress being made here in construction of the Du Pont Co. plant, and to explain some of the features that may escape the casual viewer, The Herald is presenting a two-part story on status of the project at this time. The second and final part follows.)

By ED McCANN
Herald Staff Writer

Along with the dividends in safety precautions and the efficiency that comes from high employe morale, Du Pont's big plant project at Circleville demonstrates the wonders possible through modern industrial know-how.

Field Project Manager James E. McCook chuckles at the question:

"How do you keep track of all this stuff, and how do you know exactly what you're going to need and where you're going to need it?"

He explains the giant jig-saw just has to fit together south of the city because it was all pictured, measured and cut "on paper" by the company's planners long ago.

"Ninety-nine and nine-tenths" of what you see at the plant site today was all marked off and calculated on paper before Du Pont even broke the news for Circleville. And so it will be for the rest of the way.

Pausing beside a clearing that looked no different than others all around it, McCook grinned:

"This is where we'll put the office for Mr. Ridlon (Emory F. Ridlon, named manager for the Circlevillel plant). You can tell him you saw his office when it was really air-cooled."

* * *

WHEN AMERICA'S big industrial firms vision their giant construction jobs, they do it much as a general staff plans a far-flung military campaign. Hundreds of seemingly-disconnected details turn out to have an important relationship in the final picture. Scores of the project's major phases have to be synchronized. Dozens of departments, both here and in other Du Pont offices, have to keep the same target dates.

It's all part of the know-how—the vital difference between a $10 million plant taking shape on schedule and a tremendous bedlam of tangled effort.

Big as the Circleville plant will be, it won't need all the property available for it—the Miriam Adkins tract and the Walt Goodman farm. The plant will occupy only a major part of the total 437 acres. The remainder will be turned over to Du Pont's real estate department for leasing.

Know-how also looks to the future.

Du Pont's first parking lot at the plant site was a small one, alongside a farm house used as the first field office. Now the outlines of big parking areas are prominent on the face of the project, and McCook figures there eventually will be parking room for about 500 cars.

At the height of its construction period, the plant will need that much.

* * *

THREE LARGE metal - and-cement structures are already outstanding to the distant viewer—a temporary administration building, a big receiving-and - storage warehouse and a shops building, The various craft units will have their shops in the latter, all located for maximum coordination when the building program goes into full gear.

Preparations are already under way to set the structural steel. By now, probably a half-dozen cars have been unloaded and, altogether, the plant will consume about 900 tons of structural steel supplies.

McCook explained there is no way at this time to pinpoint a

County Begins Official Study Of Bypass Row

On the surface, at least, the Route 23 bypass problem has moved from city to Pickaway County responsibility without sign of a change in strategy.

An ordinance passed by City Council, and designed to clear the way for state surveys along the bypass route, became effective Thursday after the 30-day waiting period.

Foes of the proposed highway change have challenged validity of the measure.

County Prosecutor William Ammer has asked for rulings on various phases of the dispute from the Ohio attorney general's office. When these are received, he suggests a public hearing be held on the controversy.

* * *

AMMER WAS out of the city Thursday, attending an Ohio prosecutors' association meeting in Cincinnati.

With expiration of the 30-day period after Council passed the disputed measure, the door also closed on any opportunity to seek a referendum against the measure. George Crites, spokesmen for bypass opponents, had indicated he might take such action but more recently said this idea had been discarded.

Cub Pack 205 Wins 2nd Place

Cub Scout Pack 205 of Presbyterian church won second place last weekend in the district Scout-O-Rama for its exhibit booth on Indian craft.

The local pack was one of seven units competing in the Indian Craft department of the huge Scout program.

MARKETS

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat showed a little flash of strength while other cereals generally held steady on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat responded mainly to buying by local traders who felt that, with the May contracts out of the way, the market would be less subjected to discouraged liquidation.

Dealings were rather slow in all pits.

Wheat near noon was 3/8-5/8 higher July $2.12 3/4, corn 1/8-3/8 higher, July $1.59 3/4, oats unchanged to 1/8 lower, July 73 1/8, soybeans 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, July $2.94 1/8, and lard 3 to 8 cents a hundred pounds higher, July $10.90.

* * *

WHITE HOUSE Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said plans for the meeting were being announced simultaneously in Washington, London and Paris.

Hagerty said Eisenhower's reference to a high-level meeting meant a conference of the President, Churchill and Mayer.

Hagerty added there had been no definite decision as to where the session would be held, but that Churchill had suggested Bermuda. Hagerty said:

"The President of the United States has no objection to that."

He added that he understood Mayer also has no objections to Bermuda as a meeting place.

The fact it probably will be three weeks to a month before the Western Big Three meet gives time for a program of discussions to be worked out and preliminary exchanges of views among diplomats to pave the way for the top level conversations.

Programs in such a preliminary period frequently change radically before a session actually opens, but the main issues which concern the Big Three are clearly marked out in the state of world affairs today. They include these problems:

* * *

1. DIFFERENCES between the United States and France on the one hand and Britain on the other over relations with Red China. Essentially this is at the moment the Korean question but if a truce should be reached in the next two or three weeks it would still be an issue of major importance.

Britain recognizes Red China. The United States and France are carrying the burdens of the wars in Korea and Indochina and have been much more hostile to the Chinese Red regime.

Britain would like to see the Peiping government displace the Formosa Nationalists in the United Nations, but there is bitter opposition to this in the United States.

2. The state of European defenses has been a subject of almost constant work and worry by the Eisenhower administration since it came into office. The primary aim of present operations is to get France to ratify the European Defense Community so German forces may be brought into a European army—forces without which such an army will never be very substantial. A statement from a Big Three meeting might help Mayer get action at home.

* * *

3. RELATIONS with Russia raise another class of questions of primary importance. Churchill, with some show of interest from Paris, has demonstrated far more interest in a meeting with Malenkov than Eisenhower thus far has.

Eisenhower has called for evidence of possible accomplishment first, but Churchill has indicated willingness to meet Malenkov without any strings attached.

Educators Says Schools Not 'Godless' If They Don't Teach Definite Creed

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A prominent educator, smarting from religious criticism, told some 2,500 delegates at the annual convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers here Wednesday night that public schools are not "godless" because they refuse to teach a definite religious creed.

William G. Carr, executive secretary of the National Education Association, from Washington, D. C., said those who want public schools to teach religion "assume that their own private system of religious belief is the one essential prerequisite to moral and ethical behavior."

Carr spoke at the closed session of a three-day convention, which drew delegates from all 48 states, Hawaii and the District of Columbia. He added:

"The current attacks on education, whether well founded or merely malicious, supply a further reason for both parents and teachers to clarify once more the distinction between teaching a religious creed and teaching the moral and spiritual values which are basic to all creeds."

Carr said the nation's public schools, in their legal framework, must advocate no religious creed.

He said, however, "the public school is also obligated to teach about religion as a valued part of our American heritage. It should make clear the important part which religious faiths have played in giving direction and vitality to our American way of life."

Carr warned that while instructors should not teach any particular creed, they must not teach against any creed "or against religion in general."

The educator said the impact of war, the growing amount of leisure time, the changing patterns of home life, and the incidence of juvenile delinquency all cry of the need for improvement in moral and spiritual teaching in our schools.

MASTER ADAMS

William Luther Adams Jr., two-hour-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William and Juanita Smith Adams of 210 Third St., died Wednesday afternoon in Berger hospital. The baby was born at 1:30 p. m.

Surviving the infant are two sisters, Sandra Sue and Ruth Elaine; a brother, Harold Landon Adams; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Smith, of Circleville; two great grandmothers, Mrs. Grover McCutcheon and Mrs. John Rose, both of Circleville; and a great grandfather, Robert Adams, of Kingston.

Funeral services wil be held at 10 a. m. Friday in Pilgrim Holiness church with the Rev. Alonzo Hill officiating. Burial will be in Meade cemetery.

Friends may call in the L. E. Hill Funeral Home, Kingston.

JAMES DANNER

James W. Danner, 64, of Laurelville Route 2, died at 6:45 p. m. Wednesday in the home of his sister, Mrs. James Shirkey, of near Ashville, where he was taken two weeks ago following a stroke.

Mr. Danner was born Aug. 12, 1888, near Adelphi, son of Charles and Rosa Childers Danner. While in Laurelville he made his home with a nephew, Chester Bode.

In addition to his father, who lives near Ashville, he is survived by three brothers, Arthur and Elmer of Adelphi and Beeman of Laurelville Route 2; five sisters, Mrs. Charles Garner of Circleville, Mrs. Shirkey of Ashville, Mrs. Harvey Bode of Spargursville, Mrs. Austin Collins of Ashville Route 2 and Mrs. Elva Beahmer of Adelphi.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday in Pleasant Hill church, south of Adelphi. Burial will be in the churchyard cemetery.

Friends may call in Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

MRS. LEONARD MOUNT

Mrs. Ethel Mount, 63, of Mount Orab, died Tuesday in her home following a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Mount is survived by her husband, Leonard; four sons, including Floyd Mount and William Mount; six daughters; one sister; and her father, John Redkey, of Mt. Orab.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in Mount Orab, followed by burial in Greenbush cemetery.

Jackson Teacher Leaves On Tour

Charles Will of Circleville, English teacher and librarian for Jackson Township School, was to have left New York City Wednesday for a tour of England and Europe.

Will has scheduled a one-month stay in England, where he expects to attend the coronation ceremony for Queen Elizabeth II on June 2, and then continue to tour Germany, France and Spain. He is expected to return in August.

First It's Stray Dog Problem, Now City Studies Loose Bees

Stray bees have been added to stray dogs in the list of top problems for C. O. Leist, city safety director.

City Council had hardly finished turning down his proposal against stray dogs when a resident of the northend asked that something be done to protect local citizens from stray bees.

Leist said a woman phoned to say her small boy had been stung by a bee. Unable to locate a doctor on Wednesday afternoon, according to Leist, she had to come to a downtown drug store to obtain the proper remedies.

Leist said he planned to check and see what state law provides on the keeping of bees within a city's limits.

* * *

"OF COURSE if this problem gets worse," he said, "we'll have to pass it along to Council."

In a surprise move at regular meeting last Tuesday night, Council voted down Leist's proposal to put a heavier penalty on the owners of dogs found loose in the city. Councilmen Boyd Horn and John Robinson voted against the measure.

Meanwhile, a story reported by Nolan Dunkle, City Hall janitor, indicated stray bees in large enough numbers may even discourage parking meter returns.

Duncan said he recently discovered bees had clustered over a spot where a jar of honey had been smashed in front of City Hall. The busy little stingers were hovering so close to a parking meter, Dunkle said, that a motorist refused to put in the usual coin for parking.

The janitor solved that particular problem by washing it away with a hose.

Builder Tells Of Housing Project Plan

Frank L. Gorsuch, Lancaster builder, announced Thursday he is ready to start construction of a low-cost housing project on Watt street near McCrea Ave.

He said the project, to be known as the Bloom Dale Addition, will have 62 houses. It is scheduled to be well under way in July.

Gorsuch said he decided to proceed with the job after a recent conference with city councilmen. He indicated he has assurance the city would cooperate in the way of sewer extensions. Individual councilmen also have said they had encouraged the project.

* * *

GORSUCH SAID most of the homes will be priced between $8,000 and $10,000. The price, in some cases, "may run a little higher," he said.

Gorsuch, who said he already controls the property, said two-bedroom houses will require $600 down payment, while those with three bedrooms will require $900 down.

Federal Housing Administration arrangements will make the low down payments possible, he explained.

4 City Youths Held Here After Assaulting Girls

Circleville authorities Thursday investigated two separate cases in which minor youths have assaulted or mistreated minor girls in the last two days.

Three youths, ages 14, 15 and 17, were arrested by city police Wednesday night for investigation of attempted rape of a 13-year-old city girl.

On Tuesday night, police arrested another 17-year-old lad after he allegedly beat a 13-year-old girl. The girl has been hospitalized as a result of the beating.

Authorities said the three youths arrested Wednesday night induced the young girl to ride in their auto, then drove to a side road east of town and attempted assault.

All four of the young men were being questioned Thursday by Probation Officer Karl Herrman. They are expected to be processed later before juvenile court.

Drunk Driver Bill Chances Rated Strong

Ed Wallace, Pickaway County state representative, gave renewed assurance Thursday that a bill to give drunk drivers a mandatory jail term is headed for passage and that it faces no organized opposition.

Attention was focused on the measure here when local law enforcement officers expressed belief the state needs far more rigid regulations to reduce the highway accident toll.

It was also speculated the new attempt to tighten the law against drunk drivers was being fought behind the scenes in the 100th General Assembly.

Wallace pointed out the bill calling for jailing of drunk motorists has been passed by the senate and is now in the house judiciary committee. He added:

"The committee has been overloaded with municipal court and utility legislation. I don't feel that the bill is being delayed by any individual or forces with obstructing motives.

* * *

"THERE HAS BEEN some opposition to the bill on the grounds that arresting officers would be tempted to prefer charges other than 'drunk driving.'

"I believe, however, that this measure will eventually reach the floor of the house and become enacted into law. If it serves no other purpose, it would tend to curb drinking motorists from getting behind the wheel, and I believe it would have a drastic effect in curtailing accidents."

He's No Gentleman; He's A Senator

The two had been debating interest rates on government bonds. Gore suddenly realized he had repeatedly spoken of Bush as "the gentleman from Connecticut."

That's the way House members address each other. In the Senate, decorum calls for members to address each other as "the distinguished senator."

New Pipeline Job Planned By Ohio Fuel

Local officials of Ohio Fuel Gas Co. Thursday said construction work will begin next week on a $2,307,290 pipeline project. The new facilities will boost the firm's capacity from Texas gas transmission lines.

James Cole, manager for Ohio Fuel Gas Co. here, said the project is covered by two separate budgets and is scheduled for completion in August.

One section of the job calls for 26 miles of 20-inch line from Ohio Fuel's Crawford Station near Lancaster directly west toward Mt. Sterling. It will cost $1,276,290. Ditching on this phase of the project will begin Monday.

Second phase of the project will be 22 miles of 20-inch line between Centerville Measuring Station, Montgomery County, and Howell Junction, Green County. It will cost $1,031,000. Ditching is scheduled for early in July.

* * *

DURING SUMMER months, the new line provide greater capacity for additional gas from the Southwest, much of which will be stored underground for cold weather use throughout Ohio Fuel's system.

In the Winter, western Ohio markets will benefit by increased deliveries made possible through the project.

Pete, Hiccuping Hereford, Slated For Operation

Ohio State University veterinarians hope to cut out of Pete the burps that have plagued him since March 29.

Pete is owned by Jerry Shanks of Martinsville, Clinton County.

"The operation will last perhaps an hour and a half," said Dr. John Helwig, chairman of preventive medicine who will do the surgery. "A metal detector applied to Pete shows he may have swallowed some foreign object which is affecting his stomach wall. This may have overstimulated his phrenic nerve."

Pete had some cause to be happy, however, even before surgery. Veterinarians succeeded in cutting down the number of hiccups from 10 to 3 a minute.

Bond Sales Here Almost Tripled During April

Ohio purchases of Series E and H Savings Bonds in April maintained the trend of higher month-by-month sales, compared to the same periods last year, and totaled up to a dollar gain of $3,469,881 over April, 1952.

Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of the Pickaway County savings bond committee, said sales of E and H Bonds here were $35,100 for the month and compare to $14,456.00 put into E Bonds a year ago.

All but 13 of Ohio's counties showed increases for the first month of the second quarter of 1953, Radcliff said. Cuyahoga, Montgomery, and Lucas reported the largest dollar gains for the big-city counties.

Radcliff also said national sales of E and H Bonds for the first four months of 1953 were 29 per cent greater than sales of E Bonds for a similar period last year, and the total cash value of E and H Bonds held by individuals hit an all-time peak of $35.8 billion in April.

About 75 per cent of all E Bonds which have matured since May 1, 1951, were being held at the end of last month.

Cpl. Ted Wolfe In 'Sea Jump'

Taking part in "Sea Jump," the largest Navy and Marine Corps training exercise ever staged on the West Coast, was Cpl. Theodore K. Wolfe of Circleville.

Wolfe, a tank mechanic, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Wolfe of Circleville Route 1. He and his wife, the former Rose M. Morris of Chillicothe, live at 232½ South Freeman St., Oceanside, Calif.

Serving in the 3d Ordnance Battalion, a unit of the 3d Marine Division, the local Leatherneck joined 24,000 Marines in an amphibious assault on Aliso Beach near Oceanside, Calif., on D-day, May 5.

"Sea Jump," a graduation exercise for the Division, completed a rugged 14-month curriculum of beach, desert, snow and atomic training.

U.S. Business Against Excess Profits Tax

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The excess profits tax—marched onto the congressional battlefield by President Eisenhower's radio talk—is firmly opposed by most businessmen.

They charge it penalizes the wrong fellow and hurts the general economy by encouraging waste and extravagance.

The arguments for and against the tax which you are certain to hear in the next few weeks run like this:

If the tax is continued, as the President recommended, for six more months beyond its scheduled death date of June 30, the U. S. Treasury stands to get better than one billion dollars more from business—and the treasury needs the money, which must come from somewhere.

Those favoring extending the tax will argue that it is laid on "big business," on "profiteering" and on those most able to pay because their earnings are "excessive." If they weren't making so much they wouldn't be subject to the tax, in the first place.

That is the idea on which the tax was fashioned.

This is how it works: The regular corporation income tax of 52 per cent is levied on the earnings of all corporations. That is all the majority pay.

But some 50,000 firms come under the excess profits tax. They may pay as much as 68 per cent of all their earnings into the Treasury.

Those affected are companies whose present earnings exceed 85 per cent of their average earnings in their three best years during the four year period of 1946-1949, inclusive.

Opponents of EPT—which include most businessmen whether they pay the tax or not—contend that the tax doesn't hurt big business as much as it does the small, growing one.

The fact that a corporation is making more money now than it happened to be making in 1946-49 doesn't mean it is profiteering.

Some industries were going through their own private slumps during that period, and are doing well again now. EPT hits them hard.

Others were just starting out after the war, making no money at all, or very little. Now they are prospering, and EPT swats them hard.

Companies who were doing very well in 1946-1949 are likely not to be touched by EPT—unless they are trying to grow and do better. Then they are hit.

Opponents of EPT charge the tax puts a penalty on growth, on efficient management, on wise investment.

They also contend it encourages waste this way: If a company must pay into the U. S. Treasury 68 cents of every dollar it makes—leaving a "32-cent dollar" for itself—there's every incentive to be extravagant. After all, in one sense, "the government is paying most of the bills."

By spending extravagantly on such things as entertainment, and fancy offices, the company may reduce its gross profits and pay less excess profits tax. Some even slip below EPT's grasp this way.

Proponents of EPT, however, point out that this urge to spend and escape the tax has had some good effects for business. They list the encouragement it has given to spending on research and development of new products, on advertising, and on liberalization of pensions.

Opponents answer this is more than offset by the harm it does in encouraging waste and costly operational practices and in penalizing growing companies.

Belly Dancer's Mate Trying Save Marriage

While King was preparing to leave for Cairo to try to talk Samia out of seeking a divorce, he received this telegram from Graham.

"I sincerely regret to learn of the unhappiness in your married life. May I remind you most seriously that true happiness for any individual or marriage is to be found only through faith in Jesus Christ. I shall be praying for you."

King replied:

"Appreciate so much your prayers for me in my current marital discord. Keep your fingers crossed. I'm Cairo-bound."

DREAM ASSIGNMENT

CHIEF WARRANT Officer Leslie Y. Harness has what many of his colleagues would say is the soldier's all-time dream assignment—only man in the WAC. He came by his good fortune honestly enough—not by any clerical error or other happenstance which in times past gave many a GI a false sense of anticipation only to be quickly rectified. Chief Warrant Officer Harkness is an old Army musician.

As such he is substituting for the regular distaff leader of the WAC band now on a nationwide tour.

The girls—and Mr. Harkness—have been putting in appearances at various functions here and there at widely scattered points in the land, all for the good purpose of pointing out that Uncle Sam has jobs for his nieces as well as his nephews.

Warrant Officer Harkness, a veteran of 32 years' service, shepherds his flock so expertly that if he isn't careful they'll start to refer to him as the Phil Spitalny of the military forces. One thing appears certain. The Chief is sure glad he took up music.

THE MIG OFFER

IF COMPETITION IS to spread among the states for the privilege of entertaining the first communist pilot to fly a MIG jet in to UN hands in Korea, sight should not be lost of the serious intent of the project.

When General Clark announced his $100,000 offer, the motive was to hasten the end of hostilities by adding to Allied knowledge of an effective red weapon and by creating confusion and suspicion among enemy fliers. If alluring supplementary bait held out by individual states has the effect of making the scheme more certain of success, so much the better.

But the last thing in Clark's mind when he launched the idea was that it be exploited as a stunt by forces far behind the battle lines and beyond his control.

There is no call to question the sincerity of officials in their wish to further the plan by listing the superior advantages of their states as a place for a communist fighter pilot to settle down. But realism urges that efforts be made to keep the plan from degenerating into a farce.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Since the Yugoslav Communist, Tito, broke with Stalin, some of the statesmen of the Western world, including not a few in our own State Department, have been seeking an imitation Tito in each of the Communist countries. Thus far, they have failed to find any. Tito is apparently a special case among Communists. Nationalistic Communists, such as Dimitrov in Bulgaria or Earl Browder in the United States, were eliminated for their divergencies.

Tito is as much a Marxist today as he was when, as a member of the Comintern, he was chosen to head Stalin's forces in Yugoslavia. He has never renounced Marxism. He has only established National Communism in his own country, rejecting a subordinate position to Stalin in the leadership of the world revolution. Why Titoism is superior to Stalinism is not understandable on any ideological basis; it is only understandable in the outright opportunism which has been characteristic of the British foreign policy from Chamberlain's appeasement of Hitler at Munich to Churchill's appeasement of Mao Tza-tung in China or of Malenkov in his latest speech in Parliament.

Our State Department, under Dean Acheson, generally was a mirror of British policy. Therefore, while Acheson paid lip service to anti-Communism in China, he served the cause of British trade too ardently to hold an independent view for the United States. John Foster Dulles, who has tried to build an American foreign policy, has encountered so much opposition within our own government that his earlier pronouncements, as well as those of President Eisenhower, have melted away as though in thin air.

This country is now back to the opportunism of looking for Titos and bribing them to serve our temporary purposes. Yet, the Republicans always denounced the expedients of overly-clever men who lived by tricks rather than by principles of action. They are the authors of most of our present misfortunes.

One of the Titos that these statesmen, British and American, would manufacture is Mao Tze-tung, the current Kremlin satrap in China. Following the advice of Nehru of India is always dangerous because Nehru is a broker whose profits can only come from trouble among the Western countries. When he advises that the United States recognize Mao Tze-tung, he is tricking us into a dangerous situation. His motive is to achieve the leadership of Asia for India—a laudable motive for his country but not in our interest.

Senator William Knowland, who is undoubtedly the best-informed member of the Senate on Asiatic questions, recently said in a speech:

"While I recognize there is room for an honest difference of opinion, it is my own belief that the acceptance of the Communist proposal to have prisoners of war turned over to a commission representing India, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland is a great mistake, and one that may be hard to justify in the years to come.

"All five of these nations have recognized Communist China.

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NITROGLYCERIN, the powerful explosive liquid used to make dynamite, is also known to every doctor as an important drug. As a medicine it is called glyceryl trinitrate.

Of course, it is not used for any kind of blasting, but to relax and dilate the blood vessels, increasing the blood supply through them. This makes it valuable in the heart attacks called angina pectoris, and in certain blood vessel diseases, such as Raynaud's disease.

Blood Vessel Spasms

Raynaud's disease, named for the French doctor who described it, causes spasms of the blood vessels of the arm and hand. It is not too rare, occurring mostly in women, but sometimes in men.

Mental and physical strain such as may occur due to exposure to cold, or an attack of nervousness or fear help bring on attacks. Tobacco sometimes increases the tendency for attacks.

During a blood vessel spasm, the fingers become pale, cold, livid and numb. They continue this way for a few minutes to an hour, and then the spasm relaxes. The hand becomes intensely red, with a feeling of heat.

May Cause Skin Changes

Repeated attacks of Raynaud's disease injure the lining of the blood vessels. The passages through the vessels then become narrow, and blood clots are apt to form in them because of the slowing down of the circulation. This condition may lead to skin changes, in which the skin loses its normal healthy texture. Scars may form and the hand can become deformed.

Usually, this disease occurs in one hand, but eventually it will appear in both.

In correcting this condition, it is helpful if the person can clear up any emotional troubles he may be having. Warm clothes are sometimes of help, too.

Nerves Severed

In extremely stubborn cases, an operation known as a sympathectomy can be employed. This operation severs certain nerves in the back along the spinal column which control the circulation to the hand and arm. As a result, the circulation is increased.

Recently, a number of cases have been helped with nitroglycerin. This chemical is mixed with lanolin and in the dose prescribed by the doctor, is rubbed at frequent intervals into the skin of the hand or arm. The ointment, it has been found, increases the circulation and blood supply, and raises the temperature of the skin.

It is not likely that nitroglycerin will be effective as a permanent cure for this disease, but it has benefited patients temporarily, and may offer some relief.

Cruise with Death

By F. DRACO

SYNOPSIS

Aboard the yacht "Spiritus" riding anchor off Nassau, Bahamas, Lord Robert Tintagel, his American wife Virginia, and their elderly aunt, Lady Lisa Tremaine, await the arrival of further guests. Darius Opdyke, a wealthy eccentric and owner of the luxury craft, had invited eight people to cruise with him along the South American coast. Remaining guests finally board ship. There's Gay Walton, movie actress and her very mature escort, Frederick Brown, a lawyer; Larry Redding, a broker, and his handsome wife, Carlotta; Dr. Ruben Randolph, psychiatrist. When the yacht is well underway, its passengers meet their captain, Ephriam Jonas, and their steward, Todd. Observing this odd pair, Virginia Tintagel somehow feels that the passengers are prisoners of the crew. Her premonition of evil is heightened when at dinner their host, Opdyke, announces that he means to live dangerously and gloatingly adds that he knows everything about each of his guests. Late that night there is wild commotion on deck, with the captain shouting: "The owner's gone overboard!"

CHAPTER SIX

THE LIGHTS went on in the owner's cabin behind us, and the captain cursed and jumped for the door, with the rest of the crowd close behind him. Robert was in there standing in the middle of the room, a picture of blue-eyed innocence, and holding a long white envelope by one corner.

"I thought we ought to start our search in here," he said in his blandest voice. "This was propped up against the mirror of the dressing table. It is addressed to Captain Jonas."

Jonas held out his hand. "Then I'll thank you to give it to me."

Robert ignored him, reading from the crabbed writing on the envelope. "'In the event of my death open and read this in the presence of all the passengers.'"

Frederick Brown cleared his throat, and spoke up in an authoritative manner. "Since this evidently concerns us all, I will take it for safe keeping until the captain is ready."

"It ought to go in the safe," Larry said uncertainly.

But the captain took the envelope from Robert—and a few minutes later we all knew that any amount of apprehension had been justified.

The envelope contained Darius Opdyke's will, all duly signed and witnessed by Tamas Todd and Margaret Todd Macbeth and naming his business partner as executor.

The body of the document stated:

"I believe that should I die upon this voyage I shall have met with foul play. I therefore direct that I shall be buried at sea at dawn of the day following that whereon I die, and that the cruise then be continued for seven days after my burial, unless during the interim the murderer is discovered or confesses. If on the seventh day the identity of my murderer is still unknown, the captain shall open the safe in my cabin, of which he alone has the combination, and shall take therefrom, in the presence of all the passengers, another letter, giving reasons why persons on board might wish to murder me.

"Upon the condition that the above be carried out in its entirety, I leave my yacht Spiritus to Captain Ephraim Jonas, master of the same, directing that all taxes be paid thereon out of my residuary estate, in addition to all running expenses for one year thereafter.

"The remainder of my estate, wherever situated, after my just debts have been paid, shall go to the discoverer of my murderer, whosoever he, she, or they, may be. . . ."

The silence which persisted after the reading was catastrophic until Dr. Randolph spoke.

"Good Lord!" he exclaimed.

The sound of his voice seemed to release the feelings of the others, for everyone broke out at once, but Frederick Brown had the most booming voice, and he won.

"Plainly the instructions of a deranged mind. Of course we will disregard them."

The captain did not answer him for a good long minute. He had been so quiet all the first day that most of us had not paid any attention to him, but now it was as if we could see him growing before our eyes, until he filled the room. He folded the paper very deliberately, stuck it back into the envelope, put it in the inside breast pocket of his uniform, giving it a pat to make sure it was comfortable. A malicious grin split his face as a fissure splits a rock.

"I will carry them out," he said.

Larry muttered something incoherent. Brown turned red.

"We'll see about that," Jonas answered. "It's duly witnessed and written in longhand. I think it will stand."

But Brown was not a man who gave up easily, as we were beginning to find out.

"I don't want to be officious," he began. "There is a correct procedure to be followed in these cases. We must notify the authorities by radio, and then we must make for the nearest American port. Don't you agree, Mr. Redding?"

Larry ran his hand over his short hair. His face had a worried look which seemed unnatural to it. "Oh, I don't know. I just don't know. I just can't take it in."

Brown went on as though he had not expected to get anything from Larry which could possibly matter.

"I'll come along with you to the radio shack, captain. The district attorney in Key West is a friend of mine. I may be of some help."

Jonas shook his head. His face was sober now, but I got the impression that he was laughing at us.

"I'd like to know why not."

"Radio's out of whack. Has been since this afternoon."

Larry had been looking more and more as if he couldn't believe his ears. Now his broad pink face registered horror. He found his tongue at last.

"Now see here, captain. This just won't do. You can't keep us sailing around out here. A terrible thing has happened and we've got to get ashore. My uncle—"

Jonas said "He wasn't your uncle, Mr. Redding. I've no doubt you'd like to see me go against this will and lose my chances, but I've not a mind to do it. The goose that laid your golden eggs is dead. And I'm here to see the will gets carried out." He tapped the pocket meaningly."

"A fight won't help any, Larry. Don't you see that we are all his prisoners?"

Gay Walton gave a shriek, and I could see she was close to hysteria. Lisa looked over her head at Robert, and shrugged, as if this new phase of American mores was too much for her. In her experience the best way to deal with unpleasant occurrences was to behave as if they had not occurred.

"I think I shall go to bed," she said. She might have been ignoring a waiter who had spilled the soup.

"No, ma'am," said the captain firmly. He went on in his raven's croak as if he were addressing the crew. "It's plain we had ought to search the ship, and check up on the movements of everybody. To make sure there's no hanky-panky, I'll take the men along with me, and the women can wait for us all together in the salon. Mrs. Macbeth can bring you anything you want."

Lisa looked at him in astonishment, then looked at Robert, and Robert gave her a faint nod as though signaling that she had better comply. She subsided then.

A diversion was created by the arrival of the search boat alongside the yacht, and the captain went out to see it hoisted and stowed. The rest of us used the opportunity to get out of the owner's cabin and across the dark passage to the large salon, which was the only other room on the promenade deck. We were a silent, serious, and worried group, but I think we all breathed a little more freely when we got out. There had been something ghastly about Mr. Opdyke's cabin, with his personal articles scattered about.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON, May 21 — Reversing Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge's economy decrees and Secretary Douglas McKay's power policies, President Eisenhower has quietly approved continued construction of the great, multiple-purpose Oahe dam in South Dakota at an eventual cost of $326,770,000 to the taxpayers. Personal and political considerations alone motivate the White House decision.

The Truman request of $14.8 million for 1954 construction was eliminated by Dodge from the War Department's Civil Functions Appropriations Bill on April 20. Because of doubt as to Oahe's economic, engineering and hydroelectric feasibility, Dodge ruled for indefinite deferment and possible permanent elimination pending further review of the natural resources problem in the vast Missouri Basin.

Many Army authorities and local interests support this viewpoint. The cost of power produced here, in their opinion, will be so excessively high that neither rural cooperatives nor industry would be able to buy it at a sufficiently favorable rate. But the politicians seeking Federal funds for this section insist on going ahead with Oahe.

* * *

UNNECESSARY — On May 5, only a few days after the Governors spent two days with Eisenhower in conference at the White House, the President sent to Congress a special request for continuation of the project, with a 1954 appropriation of $8.2 million.

Unless blocked by Congress, Ike's decision will result in heavy expenditures for a dam which his aides regard as unnecessary. It will also inspire political interests in every part of the country to begin logrolling on Capitol Hill for other projects previously rejected by Dodge and McKay at an advertised saving of many millions of dollars.

Apparently, the Governors from this politically important area took advantage of their visit to the White House to resell Ike on Oahe. He is also concerned over opposition charges that he plans to "give away" valuable natural resources, especially power sites, to private interests.

* * *

PLAN EXPANDED—The Oahe undertaking provides a perfect example of the difficulty of eliminating a paternalistic form of government and reducing costs after 20 years of giving the politicians what they want. It also exemplifies the spending procedure known at Washington and every state capital as "getting the camel's nose under the tent." Soon, no tent is left.

Oahe was authorized about five years ago because of its prospective contribution to flood control, irrigation, navigation and production of power. It was planned to be only a $72.8 million proposition. Now, through the usual changes and expansions, it has developed into a $326.7 million project, and even that may be an underestimate. Through 1949-1953 only $16.355,000 has been spent.

* * *

DECISION—The fact that it is only 5 per cent completed is another factor behind Budget Director Dodge's adverse decision. He was following instructions of the House Appropriations Committee that there should be no "new starts" in the reclamation field, and that projects less than 20 per cent finished should be deferred or abandoned.

Now, it is pointed out that the Eisenhower decision will necessitate fairly heavy expenditures and amount to a pledge that Oahe should be completed.

* * *

FEASIBILITY—Ironically, Oahe was dealt several other blows even before Director Dodge ruled against it. Appearing before the Missouri Basin Survey Commission, a Truman agency, V. T. Hanlon, a rural cooperative manager from Madison, Wis., questioned the project's economic feasibility. On the basis of increasing costs, he doubted that Truman-Chapman - Straus estimates of low electricity rates to farmers and local industry could be fulfilled.

The Federal Reserve Bank for this region holds that, although South Dakota has the world's potential of manganese, it cannot be processed at a low enough cost to compete with present sources. And the possible development of Missouri Basin minerals was the principal basis for federal exploitation of this whole area, which extends from the Rocky Mountains to the Mississippi River.

Stanton Delaplane is skeptical about those expensive dog whistles that are supposedly pitched so high only dogs can hear them. "How," demands "Stan," "can the manufacturers prove their claim? Can they get a single signed statement from a satisfied canine? Of course not. It's like the light inside a refrigerator that's supposed to go out when you close the door. People who sell them say so. But how do you know for sure?" "Stan" concludes that what we REALLY need is not a whistle, but television commercials that only dogs can hear. Amen!

Professional Women's Club Stages Banquet For Seniors

Mrs. H. Boecher Addresses Girls

A spinning wheel, a musical program of sprightly old tunes and treasured gowns from other eras provided sesquicentennial atmosphere for the banquet given for girls of Circleville High school graduating class by the Business and Professional Women's Club. The banquet was held in the Parish house of St. Philip's Episcopal church Wednesday evening.

Girl graduates were greeted by a reception committee wearing dresses representative of fashions from colonial times to the present. Mrs. J. C. Rader was gowned in a Martha Washington costume of lavendar organdy over an old fashioned print. She wore a powdered wig. Miss Rose Good was attired in black ruffled chiffon, a black lace shawl and a bonnet with pansies said to be 150 years old. Miss Clara Southward wore white embroidred voile fashionable at the turn of the century and Mrs. Anna Chandler's dress was a black lace with long torso and uneven hemline worn in the early twenties.

Miss Wilmina Phebus, retiring president, in welcoming the guests, reminded the audience that the banquet for girl graduates has Lutz, class valedictorian, respondbeen a tradition since 1923. Blanche ed in behalf of her class mates and following the response, Miss Phebus introduced the girls individually.

Mrs. Norman Ritter, program chairman, announced the musical program which consisted of duets by Mrs. Defenbaugh and Mrs. Larry Graham accompanied by Mrs. Liest. In the first group of duets, were: "The Waltz of the Flowers" by Tschaikowsky, "False Prophet" by Scott and "Skip-to-My-Lou" old American Folk Song. The second group of duets included: "Blossom Time", Lerman; "Ciribiri," Pestalozza-Wallis and "Grandfather's Clock" and Old American Folk Song.

All three musicians were attired in gay nineties costume, Mrs. Leist and Mrs. Graham in summer dresses of white embroiderd voile and Mrs. Defenbaugh in black chiffon with sequins and train—Mrs. Leist wore a sailor hat of straw—the other two old fashioned bonnets.

Mrs. Harold Boecher of Hallsville was the speaker. Herself a nurse, Mrs. Boecher began her address with a definition of nursing which she said was "proper care, following an illness or injury". Nursing has been practised since ancient times but modern standards began to be set only after 1850, mainly through the work of Florence Nightengale. She listed the general duties of a nurse and spoke of the different fields of nursing.

Mrs. Boecher advised her listeners to pick out an accredited school of nursing if they were planning on such a career. She told the girls many of her own experiences from the time she entered training at Henry Ford General Hospital in Detroit through her years as an army nurse.

Mrs. Boecher has done Public Health work, private duty, general duty and has served as Field Consultant for Crippled Children's Service. She was chosen for work as an anesthetist while in the army and quite recently she took extra training for psychiatric nursing. "There are many fields in nursing," she said, "and each holds a different interest." She ended by telling the graduates she hoped she had sold them on nursing and assured them that there were always adventures to be had in a nursing career.

Banquet tables also carried out the sesqui-centennial theme in their decorations. Iron silhouettes of an old fashioned woman at her spinning wheel and a coach drawn by four horses were placed at the ends and in the middle of the long tables. Between the silhouettes were narrow, containers filled with low arrangements of old-fashioned garden flowers from Circleville gardens. The flowers were roses, peonies, columbine, painted daisies, honeysuckle, corn flowers, iris and pansies. Each flower container was flanked by white candles.

In the seven windows were big bouquets of old-fashioned snow balls, high bush cranberry and iris.

On the stage was a grouping of furniture to provide sesqui-centennial atmosphere. A large spinning wheel, which belonged to Dr. Ed Lilly's grandmother and loaned by Mrs. Lilly centered the stage. Near it were placed an antique end table and ladder back chair over which a hand woven coverlet had been draped.

Programs were little old fashioned slates. Favors for the guests and girl graduates were miniature coal scuttles and iron kettles with Pennsylvania Dutch decoration. Club members received small wall plaques with silhouettes of old fashioned men and women on them. Place cards were white with silhouette of a horse and buggy.

Committees responsible for the banquet included: Dinner, Mrs. Clarence Hott and Elizabeth Davison; decorations, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Guy Campbell, Mrs. Clayton Chaflin, Mrs. Guy Petit, Mrs. Mary Luse and Miss Anne Gordon; program, Mrs. Ritter, Mrs. Clayton Vaughn and Miss Eleanor McCill; reception, Mrs. Rader, Miss Southward, Miss Good, Mrs. Chandler; invitation, Mrs. Ruth Neff, Mrs. Chandler, Miss Elma Rains, Mrs. Lucille Reid; music, Mrs. Defenbaugh, Miss Bess Gordon; transportation, Miss Clarissa Talbut and Miss Mary K. Wolf.

I LOST 40 POUNDS
AKRON LADY PRAISES RENNEL

"After trying so many ways to reduce, I was ready to quit in despair," writes Mrs. Eva. McClancy, 65 Cook St., Akron, Ohio. "However, I had received such a glowing recommendation about Rennel Concentrate from a friend of mine, that I decided to try it. Believe me I'm glad I did. I have lost 40 pounds, and the best part of it from my standpoint is that I didn't have to diet. I recommend RENNEL very highly."

Thousands have found this amazing simple home recipe the safe economical no diet way to reduce. Costs only $1.40. Ask your druggist for 4 ounces of liquid RENNEL CONCENTRATE. To this add either the juice of two lemons or unsweetened grapefruit juice as per directions. Then take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. If you are not pleased with the results from the first bottle return it to the manufacturer for your money back. See your druggist today and regain normal weight with RENNEL.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

The nation's food stores picked all cuts of beef again this week as the best buys in meat. Lamb prices climbed nearly everywhere while pork continued to sell at high prices.

Sirloin steak was selling from four to 10 cents lower in some retail outlets. Ribs of beef were unchanged to a few cents lower. Chuck roast, round roast, ground beef and other cuts also were mentioned by food men as being good buys.

One chain was featuring an "economy dinner"—corned beef, potatoes and cabbage, all of which are on the bargain lists of most stores.

The average rise in the retail price of leg of lamb this week was about four cents a pound. Food men commented that both lamb and pork were holding steady at high prices after their recent jumps.

There were some specials on frying and roasting chickens. Wholesalers reported that poultry raisers were selling chickens at or below cost and that the processors were not getting "their proper spread." There was said to be a vast supply of chickens on the farm.

On the other hand, wholesalers reported a relative shortage of both shell and rozen eggs.

In retail stores, egg prices generally held the same as last week, but there were some instances where a penny or two was added to the cost of a dozen.

There was good variety among vegetables cited as good buys. Once again, the list included cabbage, carrots, onions and new and old potatoes. Lettuce was rated a good buy, but produce men said there was a wide range in quality and nominated Romaine and Big Boston as the best bets. Other vegetables mentioned were spinach and radishes. Some stores featured corn and asparagus.

As its "food headliners," the U. S. Department of Agriculture selected potatoes, asparagus and onions, all of which are plentiful, with quality good.

Patrolman Urges County Drivers To Be Careful

With those words, State Patrolman Bob Greene Thursday urged all Pickaway County motorists to drive carefully now that good driving weather is here.

Speed consistent with conditions, a constant look-out for children and consideration for the other fellow were the points Greene stressed.

The Patrolman also reminded local drivers of the May campaign of the state patrol, being conducted in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

* * *

"GOOD DRIVERS drive safe cars—check your car, check accidents" is the May traffic safety slogan of the patrol.

Speed to suit conditions, ability to stop within a safe distance, keeping the car under control where children are present, "defensive driving" where you are alert for what the other fellow might do—many times these skills depend on the condition of your car, Greene explained.

Greene advised local motorists to "get acquainted" with their cars—to know something of the mechanics of the machine they were driving.

"If it seems to you something's wrong," he said, "fix it. Better still, have a good machanic look at it." He suggested motorists pay particular attention to brakes, lights, tires, wheel alignment, exhaust system, windshield wipers, glass, rear-view mirror and horn.

date for completion of the big job because it is going to require a large amount of specialized equipment, much of which will be of brand-new designs. Du Pont's success in getting delivery of such equipment on schedule, he explained, will determine how soon the unit can be turned over to the operating administration.

Main entrance to the finished plant will face Route 23. Front of the building will be reached by turning off to the right just beyond the viaduct over the C. and O. railroad tracks.

The railroad has already completed a long spur into the plant. Some of the big three-unit diesels have already nosed their way deep into the project, pioneers in a major increase seen for rail traffic on the southern edge of the city.

* * *

EVEN THE OLDEST structures on the property have been used to play their part in construction of the modern industrial unit. Given outside stairways and fire escapes, the old farmhouse on the property has been transformed into a beehive of field office activity.

Barns are bulging with construction supplies, and even a corn crib is utilized as a handy place to keep parts until needed.

The plant's own freight depot is a small but adequate building in clean white paint. It has a full-time agent and proclaims its name —Vee—from a station sign ato the structure.

"Mylar," the plastic-like film to be produced by the Circleville plant, was once designated as "V-film" in Du Pont's laboratories. Naming of the freight depot was in tribute to the days when "Mylar" was still running through its laboratory tests. "V-film" has made good.

The depot can handle less-than-carload shipments from the C and O main line. On full-carload shipments, trains move into the property on a "Y" branch track.

Reflecting the extent of preparation that went into the local project are the steps taken to eliminate that clutching foe of all big building jobs—mud.

Following through on the results of test borings made on the property in 1951, Du Pont's planners decided all topsoil should be removed from the project building area. A good bit of it will be put back in place so wide lawns can add beauty to the finished plant, but for the building crews the spot they're using is mud-proof.

* * *

THE MEN and machines are working on a floor of hard-packed sand and gravel, 35 feet above subterranean water. In mapping this phase of the project, Du Pont specialists made a detailed study of the district's geological history. Far better than many native residents, they know the story of the region's glacial age and what it left to build upon.

Already hidden in the sand and gravel base are networks of air and water lines that reach into all sections of the property. Designed only for use during the construction phase, they eliminate the need of portable units. Air pressure can always be tapped nearby. A turn of a wheel in similar fashion brings water.

Steam lines will be placed over the property in the same way when construction work moves into its heavier stages. Overhead around the edges of the property and through underground cables in the building area itself, power and telephone lines make up a major project of their own.

Many small communities require less equipment.

Last of the three main elements seen in the Du Pont story, as Circleville thus far has come to know it, is found in the people who are bringing the plant into existence.

It can't be measured by the success of accident prevention methods nor by the growing silhouette of structural steel. But in the way this intangible factor blends with the firm's safety-wise efficiency and know-how building routine, it is probably the most valuable in the whole achievement.

The task is charted on the premise that Du Pont people are important personalities in the sphere assigned to them—and not just cogs lost in a vast machine.

* * *

FROM McCOOK, in charge of the job, down to the latest "hard hat" hired for a relatively small construction detail, the human element has been tuned to the idea of doing the work right, on time and with a sense of satisfaction in the completed effort.

McCook's own enthusiasm sets the pace.

He attended Georgia Tech and Massachusetts Institute of Technology and has been engaged in major construction jobs since 1925. His father was an engineer and contractor, and McCook explains:

"I like all this, this is my work. It's the only kind of work I've ever done and probably the only kind I'll ever do. For me, this is duck soup."

As for his first glance at the Circleville plant site, he added:

"I liked it from the word go, even though the first day I saw it was one with plenty of snow and a howling cold wind. The first glance around told me that Du Pont would be able to do great things at Circleville."

* * *

"Hi, Jim."

"Lo, Cecil."

"Cecil," McCook explains, is an ironworker—typical of the hundreds of skilled men already working the job. And hundreds are yet to come.

Inside the administration building, already fitted with much of the office setup needed to guide a big plant's construction, the same cordiality prevails. First-name informality, for anyone who may not look beyond the surface of things, would conceal the high potential in the project's top construction team and its specialized aides.

Others in the high command directing the current phase include:

F. C. Baylis, assistant field project manager; Walter Johnson, service superintendent; Gene Clark, safety engineer in charge of the project's accident-prevention program; C. St. C. Pie, control superintendent; W. E. Shorr, planning superintendent; R. P. Wills, training superintendent.

McCook points out that some of the supervisory personnel have yet to be designated.

All the facilities of a firm interested in the well-being of its workers are evident over the project area.

* * *

MODERN CONSTRUCTION job advantages for the outdoor crews were among the first installed, including individual craft structures where men of the different skills can change their clothes, keep their lunches and otherwise gather for their on-job base of operations.

A "suggestion box" system encourages new ideas, and cash prizes wait for the ones that prove worthwhile.

A public address system, through a microphone at the main office switchboard, can carry routine insturctions or emergency orders all over the area. Military music is broadcast every now and then. It often adds to the relaxation mood of quitting time.

That's when the schedule of many things slows to an overnight halt at the big clearing south of the city, but never let it be said the project dozes when the automobiles begin to move out toward Route 23 in the late afternoon.

It was near the fag end of a working day when Sgt. Jim Diltz of the patrol force, on duty at the main gate, recognized the head man's car approaching and stepped out to meet it.

"A man who must have seen you two just came by," he grinned. "He said a couple of fellows were traveling around making sketches of the plant and figured we ought to know about it."

Du Pont's men are not only interested in building Circleville's largest industrial plant. They've already developed that partnership feeling!

Youthful Camper Drowns In Lake

ST. MARYS (AP)—Eugene Gruber, 14, drowned in Lake St. Marys Wednesday morning.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Gruber of Marion, Rt. 6, had been swimming with a group of schoolmates camping at the state park with the religious education instructor from their school.

Park officials used artificial respiration for an hour. Gruber's body was recovered about 45 minutes after he went down.

Mexican Lad's School Curbed By U.S. Ouster

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A 16-year-old boy is going home to Mexico—but not without the diploma he came for.

"I wanted an American education, the best there is, and an opportunity to better myself," Jose Rodriquez Toscano told reporters yesterday at Georgia Street juvenile headquarters. He is held for deportation back to Mexico.

He said that two years ago, when his father died, he slipped across the border at Tijuana. He enrolled at St. Turibius School and earned all A's and B's while working at a market to support himself.

Sunday, three days before he was to graduate, police raided the home where he was staying and took him into custody.

Toledo To Get Large Airport

TOLEDO (AP)—Toledo is going to have a new municipal airport 15 miles west of the city.

The new field, approved in a special election Tuesday, will cost up to $3½ million and will replace the present field, which is too small to accommodate big, modern airliners. The vote was 23,795 to 9,827 to approve a law authorizing council to finance the airport's construction.

Continentals No More Romantic Than American Males, Says Renzo

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—American men are getting a name for being the world's best husbands — and among the world's poorest lovers.

This ugly rumor is based on a theory that the average European male understands a woman's heart and an American doesn't. But more and more American wives are accepting it as true.

Well, girls, it just isn't so. It isn't likely that anywhere on the freckled earth you'll find a man who knows you as well, appreciates you more, or will love you better than here in the home of the henpecked hubby.

"We have overemphasized this belief that American men are not good lovers, and their wives are all frustrated," said Renzo Cesana, who woos and sometimes wows the ladies in his television and radio role, "The Continental.

Renzo, a sophisticated realist, has made something of a study of romance in both his native Italy and his adopted land, America.

He feels too many women have read Dr. Kinsey's clinical study of the American male and reached the conclusion they are missing some of the finer things of life through husbandly ignorance or ineptitude.

"The European woman is as frustrated as the American woman, if not more so," he said. "But she simply doesn't get the chance to protest as loud."

"The American has no reason to have an inferiority complex about sex," he said. "If Dr. Kinsey polled European men about matters of love, and they told him the truth, he would find them much less informed than American men.

"But they wouldn't tell him the truth. They would simply brag. When it comes to affairs of the heart, a European would lie to his own psychiatrist.

"The average European is sure he is a greater epicure and a greater lover than the American. But he isn't. He doesn't know as much about either food or women as the average American, because he doesn't have the opportunity to get acquainted with them in the same variety and abundance."

Cesana estimated "perhaps 75 per cent of European women" are frustrated in love—far more than in America—but don't know how to raise a holler about it. Who would listen to them anyway?

"The European lover is supposed to be more experienced, but this is ridiculous," he remarked. "Here boy meets girl early, and the two sexes get over their fear of each other very young. In Europe a man ordinarily knows nothing about the opposite sex until after he is married."

But don't American husbands take their wives for granted? Aren't Europeans more romantic and gallant?

"It is the other way around," said Renzo. "In America women take men for granted. As for those little attentions that women love, the American husband probably brings more flowers to his wife in a year than the European does in lifetime."

Well, ladies, there's the picture—the guy you're tied to may have his dopey days and dull nights, but he's still the best bargain in the dismal male field.

Now for a peek at the other side of the coin. Renzo is billed as "the world's greatest lover." What is his idea of the perfect woman

"Most men like the women who like them," he said. "That may be lazy of them, but it is true. It is the same with me. It is always the woman who makes the choice."

Despondent Blind Man Takes Life

LOUDONVILLE (AP)—A blind father of two blind children hanged himself in a jail cell here Wednesday after seeking a place to sleep.

Pennington, who operated a food concession in Columbus, was en route to Akron to visit his father, Eno Pennington. Surviving are his wife, Betty, 32, and two children in the Columbus blind school, Madalyn, 9, and Daile, 7.

Siamese Twins Die In Hospital

INVERNESS, N. S. (AP) — The Siamese twin boys born here Tuesday died last night about 33 hours after birth.

Hospital officials said the death of the babies, whose breast bones were joined, was due to the fact the 19-year-old mother, Mrs. Max Wyrwas, was in a toxic condition before their birth. She was reported in good condition last night. The babies earlier yesterday had appeared in good health.

World Today

By James Marlow
Associated Press
News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—It was a nice fight while it lasted.

Rep. Daniel Allen Reed, New York Republican, had his heart set on cutting taxes in 1953. He seemed so truly angry Monday, when he heard President Eisenhower wants no tax cuts this year, that he said: "When I fight, I fight."

Yesterday, one day later, he yielded ground to the Eisenhower forces. And before many weeks are over he 77-year-old Reed, with 35 years in the House, may find himself boxed in and beaten. He's boxed in a little now.

Reed, oldest Republican in the House in continuous service, is chairman of one of the most powerful committees in Congress, the House Ways and Means Committee, which handles tax problems and writes bills to boost or cut taxes.

When expenses began piling up after the outbreak of the Korean War in mid-1950 Congress slapped an excess profits tax on corporations and upped individual income taxes about 11 per cent.

The excess profits tax was scheduled to die automatically next June 30 and the individual tax boost was due to end the same way Dec. 31, an arrangement giving some corporations a tax reduction six months before individuals got one.

Reed decided to move up the reduction for individuals six months and let them get a tax cut the same day as corporations, June 30. His like-minded committee voted overwhelmingly for such action.

The committee members were perhaps not unmindful that all House members must face the voters again in 1954 and that giving individuals a break on the same day corporations got it might not be harmful on election day.

Reed didn't pitch his desire for a tax cut on that plane. He said his Republican party had promised to reduce taxes in 1953 and that if this weren't done the people would have been "sold down the river."

The vote in Reed's committee—made up of 15 Republicans and 10 Democrats—was 21 to 4. Twelve Republicans and nine Democrats were for cutting individual taxes June 30 instead of waiting till Dec. 31. One Democrat and three Republicans opposed this.

Their action was taken Feb. 16, with the Eisenhower administration in office less than one month, and in spite of the President's request to go slow on whittling taxes until he had a chance to balance the budget first.

Plenty of Democrats and Republicans felt as Reed did, for various reasons, no doubt. But the Republican leadership in the House began to give Reed a bad time. His tax-cutting bill was sent to the rules committee, which clears bills to the House floor. The rules committee hasn't acted.

Reed fussed and fumed. Then Eisenhower set him back on his heels Tuesday night by saying he wanted no tax cuts this session. The President asked Congress to vote to keep the excess profits tax until Dec. 31, when it could expire at the same time as the boost in individual income taxes.

The President said this was necessary for a sound economy; but it also looked pretty sound from the viewpoint of political strategy.

Individuals will be less apt to be mad—at having to wait for their tax reduction until the scheduled date, Dec. 31—so long as many corporations also have to wait until then for a cut in their taxes.

A congressman who reasoned that way wouldn't have much trouble switching from support of Reed to opposition to Reed. And Reed himself promptly faced a new problem:

If Congress was to consider and act on Eisenhower's request to extend the excess profits tax, Reed's committee should first hold hearings to let corporations and all other interested parties state their views.

If Reed refused to do this, he could be accused of discourteous defiance of the President. It might lose him support in the House. He agreed to hold the hearings, beginning June 1.

And—one day after Eisenhower spoke, some of Reed's own committee, who wanted taxes cut, began to weaken. Reed's fight may not be over. But he's already lost a lot of momentum.

Germans Giving Pledge On Trade

BONN (AP)—The West German government has given "categorical assurances" to the United States it will not supply the Soviet Union with strategic goods after resuming formal trade relations with Moscow, a high American official reports.

The West Germans are now studying an offer from the Russians to revive their once lucrative exchange of goods which was interrupted by World War II and the cold war.

Hush-Hush U.S. School Tells A-Data

Opening of the atomic warfare school in picturesque Oberammergau, scene of the famous passion play every 10th year, didn't cause even a ripple among the townsfolk.

A sun-bronzed mountain climber wearing traditional leather knee britches twisted the ends of his handlebar mustache and said in his deep-throated Bavarian dialect that he wasn't interested in the school one way or the other.

A blonde, buxom German fraulein carrying a basket of flowers said she had never heard of it. Neither had the pipe-smoking owner of a novelty shop in the heart of the village.

The school is located in a closely guarded military compound overlooking the town, which was used by Hitler's 54th Mountain Signal Battalion during the war. It is surrounded by a high rock wall and barbed wire fences. Armed guards maintain 24-hour vigilance in prison-type watch towers.

Russian Losses In War Outlined

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—A Defense Department spokesman ridicules the idea that Russia hasn't lost anything in three years of Korean fighting.

Col. W. F. Rockwell said in a speech yesterday that pessimists point out that Russia "hasn't suffered the loss of a man in that time."

"They should be told," he added, "about the setback of the five-year plan since Soviet Russia has been furnishing war goods to her fighting powers.

"Moscow reports show that output of machine tools was increasing 18 per cent a year for several years prior to 1950 but dropped to 3 per cent last year."

Want to make a quick getaway?

THE nearest we can come to word-picturing for you how it feels to drive a 1953 Buick with Twin-Turbine Dynaflow* is this:

When you toe the gas treadle, you can get away like silked lightning in a silent hurry.

More specifically, you can sweep your speedometer needle from zero to a legal 30 mph in the time you normally take two breaths.

It takes power, too.

And that's here in full measure—the highest horsepowers and compression ratios, Series for Series, in Buick's fifty great years—with the world's most advanced V8 engine powering the SUPER and ROADMASTER.

But these are things you must discover for yourself—as you must the greatest Buick performance in history.

Why not drop in on us real soon? We'll be happy to put you at the wheel of a new Buick and let our points prove themselves.

Redlegs Swing Heavy Sticks Against Phils

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs hit four home runs Wednesday as they dug themselves out of the National League cellar with a 14-5 victory over the loop-leading Philadelphia Phils.

The Cincinnatians now have won five of their last eight games and have hit 17 home runs in those eight contests with Ted Kluszewski and Willard Marshall two each and Bob Marquis, Gus Bell and Bobby Adams one each.

Wednesday it was Kluszewski, Seminick, Borkowski and Adams on the swinging end of the home run bats.

The Phils' starting pitcher, Curt Simmons, was blasted to the sidelines during a six-run fourth inning which came when Simmons was nursing a 2-1 lead.

A single by Borkowski was followed by Kluszewski's homer. Simmons got the next two out and the trouble really hit.

He walked Howie Judson. Rocky Bridges doubled and both he and Judson came home on Adams' single. Gus Bell doubled Adams home and Bob Miller came to Simmons' reecue. He got the side out after Greengrass singled Bell home.

Willie Jones' two run homer helped the Phils cut the Cincinnati margin to 7-5 but it was only a dying threat.

Bosox Find Trouble With Eastern Clubs

Western Outfits Fall Easily Before Rush Of Fenway Park Crew

By The Associated Press

If the Boston Red Sox can figure out some way to beat the other Eastern teams they will be a real pennant threat in the American Legaue. They've got the Western clubs solved for sure.

The Sox finished up a profitable home stand against the West in sensational fashion yesterday. With two out in the 14th inning—the season's longest game — Del Wilbur blasted his third pinch-hit home run of the year to give them a 3-2 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

Wilbur's blow off Don Larsen propelled Boston all the way from fourth place to second in the standings, three games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees.

The Red Sox have the best intersectional record in either league. They burned up the West early this month on a 6-2 road trip and then won six more and lost only two when the Western teams came in to visit Fenway Park.

Against the Eastern clubs, however, the Sox have won just five while losing eight. They have a chance to correct this immediately since Philadelphia comes to Boston for a three-game series starting today. Then the Sox take the road in the East.

The Eastern American League clubs as a whole were downright inhospitable to their Western visitors during the intersectional series and all four of them ended with victories. The Athletics defeated Chicago, 2-1. Washington whipped Cleveland, 8-3, and New York trimmed Detroit, 9-8. All in all the Eastern teams won 20 and lost 11 during the West-East meetings which began May 12.

In the National League the Western teams, playing at home, managed to gain the upper hand, but only by a margin of 16 games to 13. In yesterday's finales Cincinnati thumped the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies, 14-5; Milwaukee bowed for the second straight day to Brooklyn, 7-2; Chicago took a 16-6 lacing from the New York Giants and St. Louis won an 11-6 slugfest from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Yesterday's action provided a little of everything, from the 14-inning duel in Boston to the 31-hit explosions in Chicago and St. Louis.

The Giants collected 21 hits, a season's record, good for 39 bases, in smothering the Cubs. Monte Irvin, Al Dark and Davey Williams attack also included three doubles and three triples. The victory was the fourth in a row for the improving Giants.

Curt Simmons, the Phillies' ace left-hander who retired 27 Milwaukee players in order after Bill Bruton singled Saturday night, couldn't last four innings against the Cincinnati Redlegs. He gave up seven hits and seven runs before heading for cover in the fourth. The Redlegs pulled out of the cellar and into seventh place with their triumph, which included home runs by Ted Kluszewski, Andy Seminick Bobby Adams and Bob Borkowski.

Pittsburgh fell to last place by losing to the Cardinals, who pounded out 17 hits. Red Schoendienst drove home six of the Cardinal tallies with a perfect night at bat. His four hits included a home run, two doubles and a single.

Brooklyn stole six bases in handing Milwaukee its first series loss at home. The crowd of 23,450 who watched the track meet in misery swelled the Braves' home attendance to 302,667 for 13 home dates, 21,389 more than the club drew all last season in Boston.

In a game filled with misplays, the Yankees edged Detroit in the last of the ninth on Gene Woodling's bases-loaded single. The Yankees used 21 players, two short of the record they set Sunday against the Browns, and the 21st man, Allie Reynolds, who came in to pitch the ninth, got credit for the victory.

Frank Shea throttled the Indians on two hits for seven innings but had to withdraw with a stiff neck. The Indians picked up five hits and three runs on his successor, Johnny Schmitz, but the Senators had sewed it up with six runs in the seventh off Bob Hooper and Steve Gromek. Bobby Feller, who worked the first six for Cleveland, was the loser for the third time this season. He has won once.

Philadelphia's winning run against the White Sox came in the ninth when Billy Pierce, trying for his sixth victory, walked three men, uncorked a wild pitch and then watched light-hitting Joe Astroth deliver a run-scoring single.

Leaders In AA All Defeated

KANSAS CITY (AP)—League-leading Kansas City, Indianapolis and Louisville remained separated by a mere 1½ games in the American Association's hot first division jockeying Thursday.

All three of the leaders were defeated Wednesday night. Fourth-place St. Paul, only two games out of the lead, edged Kansas City 5-3 and Charleston stopped the Indians 9-6. Minneapolis chalked a 3-1 decision over Louisville and toledo shaded Columbus 5-4.

Baseball Team Forfeits For Using Negro

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Hot Springs of the Cotton States League presumably will decide today whether to forfeit every game in which it attempts to play a Negro pitcher or cease its efforts to introduce Negroes into the three-state loop.

The cellar-dwelling Bathers, who recalled Jim Tugerson—a Florence Villa, Fla., Negro right-hander—from Knoxville and attempted to play him Wednesday, were forced to forfeit the game to Jackson, Miss., 9-0, on orders from League President Al Haraway.

Haraway said Hot Springs had "violated an agreement reached in Greenville, Miss., on April 14."

He ordered the Class C loop umpires to forfeit every game to the opposing club when Tugerson's name appears on the roster.

Club co-owner Lewis Goltz said the directors would meet today to settle the issue "once and for all." He termed the agreement "illegal and contrary to federal law."

And from Natchez, Miss., came a hint that the league may try once again to oust the Bathers from the eight-team circuit.

Tom Glennon, Natchez Indian general manager, said his club fully approved Haraway's action and planned to call the president concerning a meeting.

"If the league takes action against Hot Springs, that may mean a revision of the league schedule," he said.

Tribe Drops Into Fourth Place In AL

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Indians grabbed the fastest transportation available, an airplane, and whizzed home after Wednesday night's 8-3 loss to the Washington Senators dropped them into fourth place.

The Nats scored six runs in the seventh frame off relief pitchers Bob Hooper and Steve Gromek. But it was Bob Feller, again the victim of weak hitting by his teammates, who took the loss.

Feller was removed for a pinch hitter after holding Washington to two runs in six innings.

Frank (Spec) Shea was the victor. He pitched seven scoreless innings, then was removed because of a stiff shoulder. The Indians did manage to score three runs in the ninth off southpaw Johnny Schmitz but it was a little late.

The Senators got 16 hits of four pitchers, Feller, Hooper, Gromek and Ted Wilks, and ex-Clevelander Mickey Vernon had four of them—a double and three singles.

Turner Collects Win Over Hayes

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A driving, everbusy Jesse Turner, who wants "more and more fights," punched his way into the nation's television screens Wednesday night with an impressive unanimous decision over Norman Hayes of Boston in a 10-rounder at the Arena.

Turner, a 23-year-old St. Louisan, gave up eight and one-half pounds to a more experienced Hayes, ranked 10th among the middleweights. Turner weighed in at 154½ to 163 for Hayes.

Korean POW Gets Pacer

NEW YORK (AP) — Pfc. Joseph Picerno's one desire while in a Korean War prison camp was to own a trotter or pacer when he returned to the States.

That desire became a fact Wednesday when the Springfield Gardens, N. Y., GI was presented with Your Time, a three-year-old full sister to Good Time, champion money winning harness racer of all time owned by William Cane.

Singing Sword Trots To Win

YONKERS, N. Y. (AP) — Singing Sword, an eligible for this year's Hambletonian, scored an impressive victory Wednesday in a $5,000 trot for three-year-olds at Yonkers Raceway.

A crowd of 24,061 saw Jimmy Jordan bring Singing Sword to the top at the three quarter pole and win by a half length. The time for the mile was 2:07.4, fastest for a three-year-old trotter this year.

Torch Key finished second but was placed third for a running break in the stretch. Worth While was moved up into second.

Senator Keeps Chair For Guy 'Back Home'

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the office of Sen. Stennis (D-Miss) is a chair labeled "reserved"—a chair in which no one ever sits.

Placed so that it faces the senator when he is seated behind his desk the chair, he said, is a mute reminder to him "of the man who isn't there."

He explained in an interview: "Lots of people come into this office. They ask this or that. They support one thing or another. But 99 per cent of the people from Mississippi — probably more than that—never get up here to state their views. That chair is to remind me of them.

"The average man doesn't belong to any pressure group. He's just a good citizen. He doesn't talk much. He just listens. I want to be sure I don't forget him. That chair is for him—the man who isn't there."

He Tried Hard To Punish Himself

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A garage mechanic was recovering at Charleston General Hospital today after:

1. Slitting his throat with a razor blade.
2. Setting his room on fire and getting burned in the process.
3. Hitting himself on the head 13 times with a hammer.

Fire Capt. Claude Saunders said Ralph H. Ball, 49, admitted in a signed statement inflicting all this punishment on himself but would give no reason for his actions.

Mid-July End To Congress Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wiley (R-Wis) says Congress should "go home about the middle of July and stay home until January."

"President Eisenhower was elected by the greatest majority ever given a candidate for president," Wiley said in a statement yesterday. "I am willing to trust him with the reins of government for six months."

Clinic Chief Quits

BELLEFONTAINE (AP) — Melvin J. Arnold, 33, administrator of Mary Rutan Hospital in Bellefontaine since 1950, has resigned to accept a similar position with the Winter Haven, Fla., hospital.

New Boat In Use

SANDUSKY (AP)—The Ohio shore erosion division has a new 46-foot, all-steel boat for use in surveying Lake Erie shore erosion. The boat, which has quarters for six persons, will be stationed here.

Sokolsky's

These Days

"The fifth nation, India, has more than 80 per cent of the time, since the Korean War broke out, voted with the Communist side or abstained."

What India wants the United States to do is to accept willy-nilly the Russian terms as presented at Panmunjom. This will seal our defeat in the Korean War and will please India no end because of the Indians' intense hatred for the Anglo-Saxon countries. The defeat of the United States would be a victory not only for Mao but for Nehru as well.

Such a concession on our part, such an appeasement, will not make a Tito out of Mao Tze-tung. He has been in the International Communist Movement since about 1920 when he was a student at the Peking National University.

He has been thoroughly trained in Kremlin thinking and in Kremlin techniques. It would take an intellectual and spiritual cataclysm for Mao Tze-tung to break with his entire life as an adult. Nothing in the known facts of the Chinese situation would indicate that such a cataclysm has occurred or is in the offing.

To substitute the imagined for the known; to accept the hope for the reality; to reject available date for inspired improvisations is not statesmanship; it is amateurs playing with the lives of citizens.

Ohio Farmers Definitely Restless About Farm Prices

Voting Shows Full Parity Is Wanted

Federal Support Most Sought As Aid To Growers

Three out of four Ohio farmers are seriously worried about the decline in farm prices.

This was determined in a series of special farmer meetings throughout Ohio last Thursday, where polls were taken to establish the feelings of the farmers about parity and price supports.

In Pickaway County, farmers definitely showed their unease with falling prices, but were uncertain as to the best possible method of establishing parity, a term meaning an equivalent amount of produce today would buy the same commodities as the same amount during the period before price increases.

While 56 percent of the 4,938 Ohio farmers who gave their opinions last week at county "farm price rallies" think Secretary of Agriculture Benson is "doing a good job," 31 percent are uncertain and 13 percent disapprove his actions.

* * *

THE OHIO Farm Bureau is in Washington with 40 farm men and women who are its legislative spokesmen. They come from every congressional district in Ohio and, during their two-day stay, these farm people are to talk with their senators and congressmen about falling farm prices.

Ohio farmers want 100 per cent of parity, the polls showed. They feel they should have the same purchasing power as labor and industry.

Parity means equality. If it took two bushels of wheat to buy a pair of overalls in 1930 to 1940, then two bushels of wheat ought to buy a pair of overalls today.

The poll showed 91 per cent of Ohio farmers think they should do all they can for themselves through cooperatives, research, advertising and orderly marketing before they go to the government for help.

However, three out of four farmers, 74 per cent, believe there should be a government pric support program. Ten per cent of the farmers are undecided and only 16 per cent are opposed. When a similar question was asked Ohio farmers in January, 1952, 39 per cent of them wanted no government price support program.

Asked to indicate specific support programs, Ohio farmers expressed a wide difference of opinion. There were 28 per cent who thought the government should support farm prices only at a level which would prevent disaster.

BARIABLE PRICE supports of 75 to 90 per cent of parity with the Secretary of Agriculture having authority to make adjustments depending upon production needs won the favor of 32 per cent of those voting. A year ago January, only 14 per cent voted this way.

There was a surprising lack of confidence in the present farm legislation, with only 17 per cent of the farmers believing the government should continue to guarantee 90 per cent of parity on basic commodities.

There are some Ohio farmers who think the government should guarantee 100 per cent of parity on all basic commodities, and this was the reply of 15 per cent of those voting. Another 8 percent would extend this government guarantee to cover both storables and perishables. Those who hold this view number about the same as in January, 1952, when 27 per cent asked for 100 per cent government guarantees.

The only other question in the poll dealt with foreign trade. Farm exports are only about two-thirds of what they were in 1951.

"Do you favor increased foreign trade if it means increased imports of farm products as well as increased exports?" the poll question was stated. Yet 59 per cent answered yes, with 21 per cent disagreeing. A sizable 20 per cent could not make up their minds.

The Ohio Farm Bureau legislative group met with the Ohio congressional delegation at a breakfast Wednesday. Following that, they were to talk with Secretary of Agriculture Benson and other farm leaders.

'Chiseling' On Hospital Insurance Hit

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dr. Paul B. Magnuson said last night that too much "chiseling" on hospitalization insurance, backed by physicians, is overloading the nation's hospitals.

In an interview prior to a speech to the St. Louis Medical Society, Dr. Magnuson said, "There are a lot of people in hospitals who shouldn't be there, who should be treated in their homes."

He said too often a person tells his physician he has hospitalization insurance so treatment may as well be administered in the hospital. The physician agrees, he said, because "it's easier for him to treat a lot of people in the hospital than in their homes.

"This not only overcrowds the hospitals, but it runs up the costs of hospitalization insurance for other people."

As a remedy Dr. Magnuson advocated hospitalization insurance which he likened to $50 deducitble automobile insurance, under which the car owner pays the first $50 of any damage to his machine.

The physician said he would not set a dollar limit, but would require the patient to pay the first full week of his hospital bill before his insurance would go into effect.

Britain Remembers General Marshall

LONDON (AP)—As a token of gratitude for U. S. Marshall Plan aid, Britain is establishing scholarships for 12 American men and women to study at British universities each year.

The Foreign Office announced last night the first of the awards will be given next April. They will be known as "Marshall Scholarships," in honor of Gen. George C. Marshall.
